EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Are you assessed? Thursday, September 2nd, is the last day.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S success as an angler has deserted him and he is despondent.

GRAND ARMY DAY is one of the grandest days in the year. Its celebration should be encouraged.

MAXWELL, the murderer of Preller, was to have been hanged Friday last in St. Louis, but has been respited until November 15.

VESUVIUS, the volcano, is quite different from the condition of business in this country, because Vesuvius has become active again.

BAYARD has made another mistake. Sedgwick, whom he appointed to inquire into the Mexican difficulty, has engaged in a drunken carousal since visiting the Montezumas.

BETWEEN the evident desire of both Russia and Turkey to get their claws on Bulgaria all parties may conclude that it is best to leave that plucky little country in Alexander's hands.

THE hot waves have been suppressed with little difficulty most of the summer, but there are indications that they now propose to utilize their last chance of making themselves felt.

THERE has been so much corruption and fraud in the Democratic State administration of Indiana that people are weary of it and will probably elect the Republican candidates this year.

COLORS men should not be persuaded to vote the Prohibition ticket, and of course nothing could induce them to vote the Democratic ticket. The Republican party deserves their undivided support.

An earthquake has been felt along the Mediterranean sea. It requires something of that sort to stir up the ideas of a people from whom the scepter of commerce departed more than 200 years ago.

A FRESH claim of Mr. Powderly to public esteem is furnished in the fact that the Anarchists are attacking him. A true Knight of Labor does not believe in burning down the house because his room in it is not as good as he thinks he deserves.

JEREMIAH P. ROBINSON, one of the wealthiest residents of Brooklyn, N. Y., died the other day, leaving riches behind him to the amount of twelve million or fifteen million dollars. Beware, rich men; death loves a shining mark, especially when it shines like gold.

THE question asked by so many of our presumably intelligent contemporaries, "Does prohibition prohibit?" is very silly. Yes, it does; just as truly as laws against murder, theft or any other crimes prevent, or prohibit, the commission of such crimes. None of them are successful in entirely doing away with such offences, but that does not prove the laws to be useless.

EACH one of the gentlemen announced as candidates for the nomination for prothonotary, would make a strong candidate. It will be impossible, however, to nominate more than one of them. But as the real object is to elect an anti-slavery candidate possessing elements of great strength, we have no doubt that unsuccessful ones will submit cheerfully and work with all their might for the election of the nominee. Do this and the victory will be ours.

The Great Mistake of the Prohibition Party.

We are the earnest friends of temperance—yes, even prohibition—but the unrelenting enemy of it when it comes before us as a "Wolfe in sheep's clothing," with no other or nobler object, apparently, than to do injury to the party that has saved the Union and is now the advocate of every measure that will give this country a grander place among the nations of the earth. That grand party is the Republican party. The party which ever has been seeking to ruin the country is the one that calls itself Democratic. The third party seems to us so much like a branch of aid to the Democratic party, that although it does come to us advocating one of the causes we endorse, we must repudiate it and warn our readers against it. It is a delusion and a snare, and it seems to us that true, earnest temperance men must see this and forsake it this year. The Republican party has never deceived, and now offers to prohibitionists the means to attain their object in an honorable manner. They have only to take advantage of it to mark an era of true growth in the temperance cause in Pennsylvania.

We have all along hoped that the Prohibitionists would nominate Mr. Wolfe for Governor, and they have done so. Being convinced that the party, as now constituted, is only an organization of disappointed political schemers, we have hoped that they would illustrate this fact by nominating one of the most pronounced schemers to office. The nomination of Mr. Wolfe is a brilliant illustration of what we hold the party to be. Had an old-time, consistent prohibitionist been nominated he, in some degree, would have re-established the party in favor with sincere advocates of the cause.

But the frantic efforts of Mr. Wolfe to obtain office from the Republican party are well-known throughout the State. Dozens of times he has been suppressed and sent home to Union county. At last he sees a hope of at least getting his name prominently before the public. He vaults into the Prohibition party and in a few months is their candidate for Governor. True Prohibitionists who have been hoping and trusting for some evidences of common sense in their party can now retire from it in infinite disgust. They might be willing to give up even their own beloved party if they were convinced that the object they hoped to attain could be secured in no other way, but they cannot leave a party which they can trust in order to be made the tools of a political mountebank. For this reason we expect to see the Prohibition party of Pennsylvania dwindle again to a small handful. For this reason we do not hesitate to tell the Prohibitionists that they have perpetrated a monumental blunder, and we are glad of it. Wolfe has no attractive qualities, and can elicit only ridicule, not respect.

The rest of the ticket, with the single exception of the candidate for Congressman-at-Large, is but little better. A. A. Barker, of Cambria county, for Lieutenant Governor, we have spoken of before. He is aptly named, being only a barker, and most of his barking of late has been at the Republican party, which its members will kindly remember at the polls.

Charles L. Hawley, of Lackawanna county, and John N. Emery, of Lawrence, for Secretary of Internal Affairs, are both such ordinary men that it is unnecessary to refer to them particularly.

We feel like congratulating our young friend, Rev. John M. Palmer, for the honor bestowed upon him. He has more brains than any other man on the ticket, and is doubtless sincere, though terribly mistaken. We are sorry to see him leave the party to which he owes allegiance. One of the influences that binds the writer of this to the Republican party is because he had relatives who shed their blood to redeem the country from the bondage of the Democratic Solid South. They suffered in crushing out a war originated by Democrats. Surely, Mr. Palmer must have forgotten that he and millions of his race were redeemed by this same blood-bought liberty! It must have been a momentary lapse of his usual good sense that could lead him to accept the nomination. We believe that a second thought will show him that he should decline, and expect soon to see his letter of declination in the papers.

Meanwhile, Republicans, rally for the party of patriotism, of virtue, of justice—the Republican party. Remember that Gen. Beaver, in all that makes a man, far surpasses anyone now a candidate for Governor in this State.

How it was Received.

Mr. Blaine's opening speech in the Maine campaign has been received with great satisfaction by the Republicans all over the country, while even his political opponents have little fault to find with it. Here and there an Independent or Mugwump journal has sought to belittle the speech and question the motives of the speaker, but those who have made haste to criticize the distinguished Republican leader either for what he has said or failed to say should remember that he has several more speeches to make during the next ten days, and seldom repeats himself. If they only possess their souls in patience they will probably hear quite as fully from Mr. Blaine as they care about hearing.

In this first speech it was the evident intention of Mr. Blaine to give his views on the more pressing National issues, which is quite pertinent in view of the fact that a new Congress is to be chosen this fall. The policy of the Government as regards the tariff, the labor problem, and those international questions which are now pressing for settlement, concerns the voters of the whole country quite as much as the people of Maine, and even if they did not it would be impossible for Mr. Blaine to limit his audience to a single State. When he speaks he speaks to American Nation and his words are weighed as those of the foremost statesman of his age.

It was to be expected, of course, that the delivery of this masterly speech would be the signal for his enemies to join in the cry that he was preparing the way for his renomination in 1888. It is natural that this thought should be uppermost in men's minds, but it should suggest itself to those who fear that he may again be a candidate that it is not the best way to kill him off to frighten themselves into the belief that he can talk himself into popular favor. The sensible way is to regard Mr. Blaine as an earnest champion of Republican principles, at all times willing to do his full share of party work; and, if need be, ready to make personal sacrifices in behalf of the party to whose interests he has devoted his best energies. If, two years hence, he shall be the choice of a decided majority of his party, his nomination will follow as a matter of course. In the meantime, Republicans should carefully listen to everything he has to say, and when he is done they will be better able to judge whether he has been talking for himself or for his party and his country.

Not Gallant.

We are ashamed to read of the very rude manner in which the late Prohibition State Convention treated a lady delegate who ventured so far as to take part in the proceedings. We forget the lady's name, but that cannot affect the circumstances in the least. This lady had an important mission to fulfill and like a true woman she fulfilled it. Her demeanor showed her to be a true lady, and the convention should have given her its unqualified attention. But, instead of that, it several times refused to hear her, until at length her brief resolution was read before anyone had time to prevent her. It was only to the effect that the convention endorse woman suffrage. While she was standing on her feet reading the resolution some of the male delegates were so unmanly as to hiss her. We would not expect such a boorish action from a convention of any party, but, least of all, from this party which is considered somewhat high-toned. But the fact that this convention binned a woman condemns it utterly in the estimation of all good people. No refined, cultivated people will vote for the candidates of such an uncivil convention.

The person who read the resolution was a true lady. She endeavored to have the convention champion a measure dear to her heart. There was no reason that she should receive other than fair, polite, considerate treatment. But they hissed like a flock of geese. She was not disconcerted, however. She had no cause to quail, she was performing her plain duty.

We sympathize with the lady and assure her that if she will present her resolution to a Republican State Convention she will receive nothing but respectful treatment.

Who is Mr. Thomas E. Benedict, the newly-appointed public printer?

Vanillism.

A well known chemist expresses the opinion that the poison in the deadly picnic ice cream of the period is to be found in the flavoring extract. "It is, to say the least, a pertinent and suggestive fact that in all the cases of poisoning above mentioned vanilla has been the flavoring extract employed. Some time ago, while investigating the incidental effects upon the skin, I came across a number of references, in French and German literature, to the local irritant action of the vanilla bean upon the skin. Precisely analogous effects are produced upon the mucous membrane, besides a train of neurotic symptoms. These toxic phenomena have been grouped by French authorities under the general term of "Vanillism."

The riots which have been going on at Belfast nearly the whole summer without any sign that the mob has at any time been entirely suppressed, still keep that city in a state of terror. It is now reported they will be likely to break out in a few days with worse effects than before, and loud boasts are made of what two hundred thousand Orangemen in Ulster will soon be doing. This braggartism is not only disgusting, but in connection with events in Belfast for the past two or three months, is doing a good deal to make the Orangeman a contemptible figure in the eyes of the world. The strangest part of all those proceedings, however, is that the British government, with all the military force at its command, cannot reduce the rebellious people in Belfast to order and obedience.

In our school days, when the teacher desired to flatter or encourage a boy, it was his custom to tell him that he might live to be President of the United States if he would only be a good boy. Wonder if they keep it going yet? Inasmuch as there is always a superfluity of men who think they are competent to be President, and in many parts of the country there is a painful lack of mechanical talent, wouldn't it be a good plan to change the programme occasionally, and inspire a boy to try and be a good shoemaker or blacksmith? Tell him, "Now, my dear boy, try and be good, obedient and industrious, and perhaps you will rise to become the boss carpenter of your town!" Try it once.

THERE are two very contradictory statements in the Prohibition State platform. In section twelve the platform asserts that "the sectional feeling between North and South should be obliterated." Then section fourteen contains this remarkable statement, "That disfranchisement as punishment for acts of corruption of the voter, of false counts and false returns of votes cast at our elections, should be enacted." This is a direct stab at the South. Do not the framers of the resolutions know that such laws would disfranchise one half the voters in the South, where all the corruption, false counts, false returns, etc., occur? Never can you induce a southern man to advocate the passage of such laws.

We agree with others that the opening of a liquor saloon at the Soldiers' Home, Dayton, Ohio, is a very reprehensible thing. We know that this has been done, not only because we have seen references to it recently in the papers, but because we have seen it stated in a private letter from the Home. The proprietor of it is reaping a large profit. The government should prevent the operation of any such an institution so near an establishment designed for the happiness and comfort of the Nation's defenders.

It is only two weeks since Prince Alexander was turned out of his palace at Sofia, and now at the end of another week he is in a fair way to be returned to it in full possession and with more of the love and obedience of his subjects than he has ever before enjoyed. The revolution—it now seems laughable to call the movement against him by so formidable a name—was a most clumsily managed affair, and it is not to be wondered that Russia, since she has seen it ignominiously collapse, has been eager to disavow all connection with it. The Russian agent and their tools in the Bulgarian government seem to have misjudged entirely the feelings of the Bulgars, and, instead of injuring Prince Alexander, have done him a positive good. They have succeeded in awakening for him a display of loyalty which otherwise might have lain dormant. There have been many failures in attempts to set up revolutions in Europe, but none so ridiculously disastrous as this movement to dethrone Prince Alexander.

Civil Service Mockery.

So very many Federal office-holders were chosen as delegates to the late Democratic State Convention, that, in order to prevent it from being termed "the office-holders' convention," President Cleveland was compelled to issue an order prohibiting those holding office under the Government from attending political conventions with a view of influencing their action. How that order has been disregarded is attested by the fact that most of the Democratic State Conventions held this year, as well as Congressional Conventions, have been largely made up of Federal office-holders—the convention in this State not being exempt from their presence and interference. Among those taking an active and offensive part in the proceedings of the Harrisburg Convention were Albert W. Fletcher, Chief Clerk of the Navy Department, and Thomas J. Ryan, Special Agent of the Treasury, and both residing in Randall's Congressional district.

Fletcher was not elected a delegate, but came on from Washington and entered the convention as a substitute, and Ryan made himself conspicuous by holding a Wallace delegate, named O'Brien up and shouting at the top of his voice: "This delegate changes his vote from Wallace to Black," and as it was that change of a vote that nominated Black, it would seem that the President's Civil Service is a mockery, and the resolution of the Democratic State Convention, in endorsing it, a delusion.

Explosion near Chicago.

On Sunday morning, at 9.30 o'clock, a flash of lightning exploded Ladin & Rand's powder magazine, a short distance from Chicago. One hundred thousand pounds of powder, dynamite, nitro-glycerine, etc., vanished into the air, leaving behind it a hole about twenty-five feet deep.

The damage wrought was fearful to contemplate. Every building, within the radius of a mile, was damaged. In some instances the houses near by were totally destroyed and their occupants killed. Several Roman Catholic church buildings located in that vicinity were filled with worshippers. The effect to them was like a mighty earthquake. The bells rang, the buildings shook and the people were panic-stricken. A similar effect was produced throughout the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth wards of the city. Many window panes were broken in the buildings and in a few instances the heavy glass, falling on passing pedestrians, killed them. The tremor of the earth seemed to sweep onward like a wave of the ocean. We never read anything like it before, and it seems a great mistake to have such magazines so near great cities. Several other stores of combustibles are located in the same vicinity, and are a constant menace of danger to valuable property.

It Is Very Discouraging.

It is an awfully discouraging thing just now to be a Democrat. Especially is it discouraging to be a Democrat who wants something, and they all want something. Did you ever see a Democrat who had all he wanted? Perhaps the most discouraged portion of this hungry crowd is the faithful Democratic party of Centre county. We think that Editor Meek has much reason to be discouraged. When Ex-Gov. Curtin began to imagine that he had great influence with the President, he was confident that he could secure for Mr. Meek the position of public printer. Rounds resigned and the way seemed open, and Mr. Meek would have accepted gladly, as he knows that he can never, even if nominated, be elected to an office. But the appointment didn't come this way. A man named Benedict was appointed. Evidently, Mr. Meek's Democracy is not of the right sort. The Democratic party is inclined to believe that Presidents and Republics are ungrateful. The Watchman will do for use, but its editor must never be rewarded. Mr. Meek must swallow his numerous defeats, and again be retired to his dull routine of office duties.

GENERAL NOTES.

A Mexican village is to be exhibited at Horticultural Hall, Boston.

The Canadian Pacific railway has fitted up a number of cars with baths.

One hundred persons daily climb to the top of the Washington monument.

Star-shaped beads are the new things in glass, of which one must wear a pound or two.

All the cannon foundries of Europe are overrun with orders and working day and night.

A Kentucky court has decided that when a girl jilts a lover she must return all his presents.

A tame bear at Ithaca, Mich., fatally bit and clawed a little 5-year-old daughter of W. H. Beasley.

Twenty-four rattlesnakes were killed in one thicket, on Spoon river, in Knox county, Ill., last week.

The City Council of Minier, Ill., has passed an ordinance forbidding the sale of cider inside the city limits.

Miss Phoebe Harrod, aged 100 years, is living at Newburyport, Mass. Her centennial has just been celebrated.

A club in London has successfully defended a suit on a debt of £700 on the ground that it was a gambling debt.

The gladiolus excelsior of a delicate blending of white, pink and yellow seems to be a favorite variety this year.

"Rebecca's Triumph," a play without a hero, was presented by 13 young ladies lately at one of Maine's summer resorts.

Miss Heaven is the name of a young woman recently confirmed at Lundy Island by the visiting British Bishop of Exeter.

A tomato weighing two and one-half pounds was grown at the poor house garden, at York, and presented to the editor of the Age.

Moses Thompson, aged 82 years, and Mrs. Nancy Peak, aged 34, both of Mahomet, Ill., were united in marriage one day last week.

There is a spring at Lenore, Cal., for which the claim is put forward that the use of its waters take away the desire for ardent spirits.

A Venetian composer has turned out the opera of "John Huss," and shows among other fine scenic effects the burning of Huss at the stake.

A portrait of Maseppa has been discovered in a monastery at Kiev, and an etching of it has been undertaken by the academician, M. Dmitrieff Kavkazsky.

A Boston colored man insisted to have a second set of ribs below the regular set. He also apparently has two hearts and can regulate their pulsations at pleasure.

Los Angeles, Cal., has a new ordinance making it a misdemeanor for minors under 18 years of age to smoke cigarettes on the streets, and for any one selling cigarettes to such minors.

A fire in a lower oil country town was due to the fact that the lady of the house had put some kerosene in the starch to give it a better gloss. The boiling over of the starch caused the fire.

Inflated bladders are placed daily in the pond at the Philadelphia Zoo, and the elephants take the greatest pleasure in chasing them, obtaining peculiar delight from breaking one occasionally.

The deaths in rapid succession of so many old public leaders have turned attention toward survivors, among whom is Pierce's Postmaster General, James Campbell, who is still living in Pennsylvania.

Everybody named Billing or Billings is invited to a reunion to take place in Tremont Temple, Boston, at 10 o'clock a. m., on September 10. There is to be a composer named Billings and a historian named Billings.

A scattered flock of apparently wild pigeons passed over Titusville, Sunday, flying eastward. Their course was quite a puzzle, at this time of year, to those who regulate the weather by the flight of birds.

The Naval Board of Inspection has found halting from the port of New York alone 102 American iron steamships of over 2,000 tons, capable of running 14 knots an hour, and fitted for auxiliary cruisers in case of war.

A small boy in Bangor, Me., thought it would be fun to tie paper and straw to his dog's tail and set them afire. The dog ran into the boy's father's barn, which, with an adjoining house, was burned to the ground. Loss, $4,000.

John O'Malley, of Dallas county, Ia., is 112 years old and is still vigorous, and mental faculties all bright. He remembers distinctly the Irish revolution of 1789, when the French landed an army on the coast of Calais to aid the Irish.

The wealthiest colored man in the United States is said to be Tonic Luron, a French quadroon of New Orleans, whose fortune is estimated at $1,100,000. An organ of the colored people in the South says that the colored people of the South pay taxes on $90,000,000.

Two gravestones, dated 1804 and marked "C. D." and "S. D." together with five skeletons, were found a few days ago in Laconia, N. H., by a workman who was digging a deep ditch. The oldest inhabitants have no recollection of a burial ground in the vicinity.

It is one of the curious facts of the recent past that Tacoma was selected as the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad by Judge R. D. Rice, of Maine, acting as Vice President of the road, and that a pioneer from Maine gave the name to the city of Portland on the Williamette.

A correspondent says that of 34 winters passed on Puget Sound, only 6 were severe enough to require the housing of stock. There are often hot summer days and cold nights. The winter months are from October to April, and only now and then is the ice strong enough to bear human footsteps.

Poetry.

SOMEHOW OR OTHER WE GET ALONG.

The good wife bustled about the house,
Her face at it bright with a pleasant smile,
As broken snatches of happy song
Strengthened her heart and hand the while.
The good man sat in the chimney nook,
His little clay pipe within his lips,
And all he'd made and all he'd lost,
Ready and clear on his finger tips.

"Good wife, I've just been thinking a bit,
Nothing has done very well this year;
Money is bound to be hard to get—
Everything's bound to be very dear;
How the cattle are going to be fed,
How we're to keep the boys at school,
Is kind of a debit and credit sum,
I can't make balance by any rule."

She turned her round from the baking bread,
And she faced him with a cheerful laugh;
"Why, husband, dear, what would I think
That the good, rich what was only chaff?
And what if we both are well and strong?
As long as we both are well and strong?
I'm but a woman to worry a bit,
Somehow or other we get along."

"If to some lives some rain must fall,
Over all land the storm must beat,
But when the rain and storm are over,
The after sunshine is twice as sweet.
Through every strait we have found a road,
In every grief we've found a song;
We've had to bear and had to wait,
But somehow or other we get along."

"For thirty years we have loved each other,
Stood by each other whatever befel,
Six boys have called us father and mother,
And all of them living and doing well.
We owe no man a penny, dear me,
We're both of us living well and strong,
Good man, I wish you would smoke again,
And think how well we've got along."

He filled his pipe with a pleasant laugh;
He kissed his wife with an ardent wish;
He said: "I'll do as you tell me, love;
I'll just count on the other side.
She left him then with his better thought,
And lifted her back with a low, sweet song—
A song that had followed many a year,
Somehow or other we get along."

THE WIND AND THE LILY.

The lily lifted her milk-white bloom,
And she freighted the air with a soft perfume,
And the warm wind came from the sultry vale,
And he kissed the petals so soft and pale.

With a farious heart she reared her head,
For she thought there was naught from the wind
to dread,
And she wrapped her round in her spotless pride
And she shed her fragrance on every side.

But the wind grew warmer and stronger still,
And he kissed her cap with an ardent wish;
And the petals dropped in the burning air,
While her beauty waned with mortal despair.

But the wind passed by with a careless smile,
And he sought new buds in a little while;
Yet he gave no wealth to the perfect flower,
But he took from her—beauty, pride and power!

I pondered the lesson in thoughtful fashion,
The lily was virtue—the wind was passion.

NUMBER ONE.

"I tell you," said Robbie, eating his peach,
And giving his sister none,
"I believe in the good old saying that each Should look out for Number One."

"Why, yes," answered Katie, wise little elf,
"But the coming child, being born, has begun
With the other one instead of yourself,
And he should be Number One."

Our Story Teller.

MY FOOTSTOOL.

My brother gave his work a final polish, and then viewed the valuable articles approvingly before placing them in their softly-padded case.

"Think they look well, little woman?" he asked.

"I think they do indeed," I answered, in unqualified admiration, for Ted was a capital workman, and had mended the pretty trinkets very skillfully. "I am sure Mr. Bailey will be pleased. The owner herself would be puzzled to detect where she damaged them."

Ted smiled; then, as he did not intend to take them back to the shop until the return of his employer, which would not be till the morning, he deposited both the jeweled bracelets in his customary "non-burglar-proof safe," as he jokingly called a small strong square box which he had fitted with lock and key, padded inside and out, and covered with chintz to match our sofa.

He made me use this as a footstool, saying that evil-disposed persons would be less likely to examine it; and many a jest he had about his placing gems under my feet, and about my being a small person with a high mind, for I set my foot upon gold, and the like nonsense. Dear old Ted! He was so clever at his trade, and so trustworthy, that he always had more work than he could get through. He was very fond of me—his poor little crippled sister—would never allow me to sit too long at my needle, and shared with me in every possible way the little duties necessitated by our humble meagre; so he and I jogged along very peaceably. We lodged in two rooms in a quiet street on the outskirts of Bridgepool. Our landlady was a kindly old body who had known our parents long before either Ted or I found ourselves on this world's stage.

Having put away the bracelets safely, my brother next packed up three of four watches he had been setting to rights, and prepared to go to the shop in Bridgepool which usually employed him. I watched him putting on his overcoat, for the day was very cold; but he seemed slow in his movements, and I thought he was reluctant to leave me alone; for, though I was generally active enough, considering my infirmity, one of my bad spells was now on me, when, as he knew, I found moving a pain and a difficulty for some days. It happened too that Mrs. Brown—our landlady—had gone out for the day—a rare occurrence.

"Can I do anything else for you before I go?" he asked.

"No, Ted dear, thank you."

"Make sure; look around and see if everything is put handy for you," said my brother, placing my crutch a little nearer.

"Everything," I replied cheerfully. "And I have such a lot of work to get through, I shall find the afternoon very short."

"I don't half like your being left alone so long; for I may not be back before five," said Ted, eyeing me dubiously. "Cousin Milly would come round if I ask her."

"Yes, and bring her baby, who would hinder my work sadly. I don't like babies when I'm busy. Go away, Ted, you dear old fellow! Don't bother about me; I shall be all right."

"Well, bye-bye, little woman," he said, stooping to kiss me; "I'll be home as soon as I can. And, Bessie," he added, pausing in the doorway, "be sure you don't touch the widow, today. The ash-line snapped this morning; I must send a carpenter to see to it. You will remember?"

I promised that I would, and my brother departed. I heard him go down stairs and shut the street door. At first the unusual quiet of the house was rather depressing; but I soon became too much engrossed in sewing to pay attention to that, and stitched away busily at some things I was completing for a lady who was kind enough to praise my needlework, preferring it, as many others did, to a machine-stitched article. Presently I thought I heard a slight noise down stairs, like the opening of a window; but, as all remained quiet afterwards, I put it down to my imagination, and went on tranquilly with my work. After some time I was startled to hear a step, stealthily, but distinctly audible, on the landing outside, while under the door appeared the shadow of some one moving.

"Perhaps Mrs. Brown has returned," was the thought in my mind as I sat gazing at the door; but then I turned cold with fear, for the handle was turned softly, and a strange man looked in—a young man with a pallid, greasy, leering face, ornamented by a thievish looking twist of hair on each side, while a limp cap of semi-military cut was stuck rakishly on the side of his head. I noticed these details mechanically as I sat petrified with surprise and fright, and I also noticed that his long, dirty neck was without tie or collar, a shabby frock-coat being buttoned up to his chin, and that his dirtier hands sported more than one ring.

This individual, after darting a swift glance around the room, slipped in and locked the door, saying:

"Slick! Popsy-wopsy, don't be frightened! I'm not going to hurt you—not a bit of it! But, you see—stop that!" he growled; for, as he approached me, I recovered myself a little, and gave a good loud scream.

Quick as thought, he had his hand over my mouth, holding my chin and nose in such a manner that I was nearly suffocated, then he gave me, shake, saying:

"If you do that again, I'll pay you out, you little fool! There—she is going to be nice and quiet now, ain't she? A picture of good behavior, I call her!"

Talking thus, he gagged me dexterously with some of my work—which however was pleasanter than his hand—ugh, that grimy hand!—on my mouth; and then, producing some cord from his pocket, in a minute or two I was—poor little feeble thing—bound hand and foot in my chair.

He grinned at me as he remarked: "Now, you know, ducky, I wouldn't have served so if you'd had the sense to keep quiet. I never could bear to be rough to the ladies—never! But time is short, and you might have been hard to persuade; so perhaps it's the best way, after all."

While speaking thus, the flippantascal kept running his eye around our neat little rooms. I read disdain in his glance; and at that moment a suspicion darted into my mind that he had come with the object of stealing some of Ted's work—perhaps the jeweled bracelets which then were under my feet. With this thought there came to me the firm resolve to save my brother such a loss, if I possibly could; ay, even though I had to endure tortures, I would not speak. I set my teeth hard, and watched the man. His wandering glances soon reverted to me.

"Look here, dear; if I loosen this cloth a bit, and you take breath, will you speak to me nicely? Only don't scream again; it makes me quite nervous to hear you scream, and can't do you no good." How well I knew that, in a back room in a quiet street.

"There—ain't it much more comfortable," loosening the cloth. "Tell me now, popsy—your brother's got some valubles here ain't he?"

I shook my head.

"Oh, but he has; so you needn't jog your noddle like that! Better tell me where he's put them. It will save lots of time, and be more pleasant for you."

"Did you ever see sitch stubbornness?" muttered the fellow tying up my mouth again. "I am afeard I shall have to make you speak directly. But I never like to be unkind to the ladies —unless they drive me to it—oh, no, never!"

Saying this, he began an examination of the apartment, proceeding in what, as I suppose, would be described by a "professional" as the "best style;" any way, his movements were characterized by extraordinary celerity. Within a few minutes he had gone to the bottom of every drawer and box in the room, and also turned out the sofa bedstead where Ted slept at night. A pretty litter he made of it all! But he had not yet discovered the secret of my footstool. Can any one imagine what I endured as I sat there, helpless as a poor little Chinese "Jo," the cold perspiration of fear on my forehead, while I asked myself, "What will the fellow do next?"

He turned round while proceeding with his search, and looking at me, said—

"Hallo, Poppet, how pale you are! Ain't going to faint, are you? Oh, don't faint, for I shall want you to talk to me a bit! I'll open the window and give you a mouthful of fresh air. This room is precious close."

He went to the window—the window which dear Ted had cautioned me not to touch that morning—unfastened the catch, and would have let down the upper part; but he was saved the trouble, for the cord being broken, down, quick as a shot, came the window, and as luck would have it, caught his eight fingers tight between the upper and middle frames.

The pain and the shock must have been dreadful, the window-frame being a wide and very heavy one. He uttered a howl, then kicked frantically; but all was in vain. There he stood, with both hands held aloft, caught in as nice a trap as could have been devised for an evil-doer. Then he glanced at me, and the sight of me, "picture of good behavior" that I was, must have filled his soul with remorse, since through his own act I was rendered powerless to assist him. He whined however—

"Can't you help me?"

As it was impossible for me willingly to look on while a fellow-creature suffered such anguish as I knew he must be enduring, I used every effort to get free, but vainly. He had tied me too firmly for that. He took to kicking again, and began to swear horribly. May I never again hear such language as I was forced to listen to that afternoon! His hands soon swelled, and I saw some drops of blood trickle slowly down the panes, the rings he wore on his dirty fingers having been forced into the flesh. The piercing air, which rushed in freely through the wide aperture, must have greatly aggravated his suffering. I know I was nearly frozen. And all this time the American clock on the mantelpiece kept ticking off the moments tranquilly, as though to assure me that time could not be hurried into a quicker pace by any consideration of human distress.

Imagine what two hours in such a situation meant for both of us! Two hours! I think the poor wretch at the window fainted; but the horrible dragging of his body on his poor maimed hands roused him directly. Trembling with cold and commiseration, I sat watching him, the tears rolling down my cheeks. Oh, why had I refused Ted's kind proposal to send cousin Milly to me? Why had I been so captious about her dear little baby? Better a room full of babies, all doing their worst, than—But here I swooned, and fell, chair and all, on the rug before the cold grate, the fire having died out long since.

Just on the hour of three I became conscious of a dull thud below, which I knew to be a knock at the street-door. I lay listening, but rather wondering vaguely what would happen next than taking any interest in things of this life, from which I seemed in a manner to have floated away.

After an interval, I heard steps plodding up the stairs, and a loud cheery voice, which I recognized as that of our friend, Mr. Joy, the carpenter, called out—

"Hillo! Anybody at home?"

Coming to our room door, he knocked, then turned the handle, but of course found it locked. Being unable to speak, I yet tried to groan, and made some unarticulate noises; but I could hardly hope the old man heard them, as he was somewhat deaf. As for my companion in misfortune, one would suppose he would gladly have hailed a prison as an escape from such a plight as he was in; and so, no doubt, he would, only he had no choice at that moment, having gone off again in a heavy swoon.

I heard the carpenter go down-stairs, and hopes of relief died away in my breast. Oh, Joy, Joy, why did you come to mock me thus? Two more hours probably before Ted will be home! Shall I be alive by then? My bound and aching limbs were on the rack of pain; I lay and sobbed miserably. But hark! A shout from the back garden!

"What the dickens is all this?"

Again I heard the voice of Joy.

It appeared that the carpenter, on trying our room door, and finding it fastened, concluded we were all out, but went round to the back of the house "to have a look at that there winder" which my brother had sent him to mend—of course not expecting to find it converted into a man-trap. He had noticed, while knocking at the street door, that the parlor window was unfastened, and thinking it unsafe, especially as Mrs. Brown was out, he had used his privilege as our old friend and hers to get through and fasten it before coming up-stairs. No doubt the thief had entered the house by that way.

It was not long before help came and the door was broken open, when our misery was ended. I dare say, since prisons were first built, there never was a culprit who walked into goal more meekly than did the one who had intended to rob my brother.

They say the poor fellow's hands will never be right again; amputation may be necessary, as erysipelas is setting in. Well, all I can say is, I freely forgive him for the suffering, mental and bodily, he caused me.

I was in bed for a fortnight, but eventually got all right again. Dear Ted says I am a brick; but that may be his partiality. Anyhow, my footstool proved to be a very effective safe. To this hour no one knows about it but you, Ted, and myself!

Young Mozart.

At five years of age Mozart began composing without the slightest guide. He formed the pieces on the piano, played them to his father, who then wrote them down.

It is strange that he was not a child when seated at the piano. Nobody dared address a joke to him or talk aloud. In a letter of his father's it is stated that some of his friends, who saw the child so very serious, predicted that he would not live long.

Although he willingly studied everything his father told him to work at, music filled his soul from early childhood to such an extent that when his toys had to be taken from one room to another he insisted on a march being sung, to the strains of which he walked in time and in procession with the person who assisted him.

From a letter from Count Trumpeter Andreas Schactner to Mozart's sister, I take the following details. I may first be allowed to say that a trumpeter then was not what he may be now, and that this Mr. Schactner was a man not only of musical but literary culture, who often lent a helping hand with Mozart's libretti. He writes:

"Once I came home from church with your father and we found Wolfert fully engaged with his pen." (Wolfert—the diminutive of Wolfgang—means in German, just the same as in English, a small wolf.) "The child had a paper before him and would not let us see what he wrote because it was not ready. It was full of ink spots, because he pushed his quill every time to the bottom of the inkstand. His father at last took it away from him and found it was the manuscript of a concerto for the piano, and on his remark that it was too difficult, the little boy jumped up and said, 'It is a concerto. Let those who want to play it study hard, and he set down to the instrument and played it.'"

Evidence of his marvellous capacities was given in his seventh year. A trio was played, and he begged to be allowed to play the second fiddle. His father, knowing that the boy had never had regular instruction, would not hear of it. The boy insisted. So the father ordered him out of the room.

He then resorted to the infallible means with which children and women govern their so-called masters, the men; he began to cry. Of course one of the friends present begged that the child might be allowed to have his will, and to the utter amazement of all present, he sat down and played without a fault, first the second, then the first fiddle, until it was the father's turn to shed tears of surprise and admiration.

Heating a Hotel Keeper.

From Henry Waterson's Letter to the Courier-Journal.

A friend of mine the other day came to settle for his night's lodging at a bed-buggy little hole in the wall near the railway station here in Neuchatel called the Hotel des Alps. In addition to the charge for apartment, service, lights, &c., was the item "un-dejeuner." I will put into plain English that which followed.

"But I didn't order any breakfast."

"That was no fault of the house, Monsieur."

"Do you mean to tell me that you wish to charge me for the breakfast I neither ordered nor ate?"

"The breakfast was prepared all the same, Monsieur."

"You pretend that you provide a regular table d'hôte breakfast every morning and charge for it whether your guests take it or not?"

"Yes, Monsieur. See the menu? Here it is," and the firm yet polite landlord produced his regular "a la carte." My friend turned it upside down. Then he carefully perused it. Then he said:

"How much of this do you serve as your regular breakfast?"

Anything you like, Monsieur.

"Very well. Receipt the bill, and, as I am to pay for a breakfast, please God, I will eat it. Bring me a fillet of beef, with mushrooms, a half chicken grille, a rum omelet, and a pint of Chablis. I shall wait over until the next train."

Mine host of the Hotel des Alps looked first stupefied and then disgusted, and, finally grasping the situation, he ran into his office, altered his bill in conformity with the facts, and, hurrying back, cried: "Here, Monsieur, here is your bill, quite correct—six francs thirty-five centimes—and you will just have time to catch your train."

Verbosity.

General Butler's verbosity lost a case recently in the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. It was the case of Mrs. Maria Taylor Norcross, for alimony and allowance for counsel fees pending her application for divorce.

The case turned on the question of the legality of an agreement to live together as man and wife. General Butler, representing Mrs. Taylor, argued that the parties were married because they had lived together as man and wife for eighteen years. "Had counsel stopped here," said Judge Holmes in his decision, "I should have assumed that a marriage had taken place, but counsel went on at great length and argued the facts which he claimed constituted marriage, and this left no opportunity for the court to make peremptory." Mrs. Taylor lost the case.

Verbosity did it. This is a great fault with many lawyers, ministers and all classes of public speakers. It is a great art for a public speaker to know when he is through, and stop. What powerful and capacious minds jurors must have to hold, mark and inwardly digest the three, four and five arguments they are compelled to hear from men whose extreme profuseness and verbosity of style make their speeches like Tennyson's brook. Many preachers make a mistake just here. They preach a sermon into the people and then preach it out of them.

They close the Bible with emphasis and say "lastly," but talk on until you begin to think the preacher meant to say everlastingly. They drive the nail home and then beat and bang on the head of the nail until they break the head off, split the plank, break the helve of the hatchet and mash their thumb, and then call the job finished.

Verbosity is a great and crying evil. O ye public speaker, give us a rest. Concentrate and stop when you get through, if you want to get what you say through your audience.

A Peculiar Scotch Custom.

On Saturday night an interesting scene is to be witnessed in every town and village in Scotland. It is a stream of the natives in their Sabbath clothes making for the small grocers.

The puzzled visitor little thinks that an inquiry into the meaning of this would give him the secret of Scotland's reputation for being a kirk-going people. What everyone is off to buy is a bag of peppermint lozenges, and he always takes the shopman to give him the change in half-pennies. The half-pennies are for the plate, the lozenges for church consumption. Many pounds of the kind favorably known as "extra strong" are eaten throughout the country at every service. There is a great art in slipping them solemnly into your mouth, and long practice has made some devout people so good at it that they can do it though the minister's eye be on them.—St. James Gazette.

Tactics but not Tactics.

Mr. Webster used to tell a story at the expense of Peter Little, who had in early life repaired clocks and watches, but who had for some years represented a Maryland district in the House.

One day he had the temerity to move to amend a resolution by John Randolph on the subject of military claims.

Mr. Randolph rose up after the amendment had been offered, and, drawing his watch from his fob, asked the honorable Peter what o'clock it was. He told him.

"Sir," replied the orator, "you can mend my watch, but not my motions. You understand tactics, sir, but not tactics."

Perspiring Clouds.

Little Dollie asked his mamma if he could go out in the yard and play, to which his mother replied that he could not, as it was raining.

Looking out of the window a few minutes afterwards, he said:

"Mamma, the rain don't rain any more."

"But the ground is wet, Dollie," was the reply, "and it is still very misty."

"Well," replied Dollie, "I des it nothin' but the perspiration coming down."

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmonds Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficiency.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.
As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., it hardly ever uses anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Liver.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terrible fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is required, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have yellow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, irritability and gloomy broodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption, sold by Druggists.

Report of the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury beg leave to direct the attention of the commissioners and Court to the very defective condition of the water closets and sewerage immediately in the rear of the Court House. During the session of the Grand Jury, the offensive odor from this quarter pervaded the room where their deliberations were conducted, so that their testimony in this direction should receive the prompt and intelligent attention of the commissioners of the county, to whom is entrusted the care of the county's property, and whose duty it is to provide good and healthful accommodations and ventilation, for the transaction of the county's business.

There is no reason why there should not be almost perfect freedom from the slightest impurity connected with these water conveniences where the facilities for complete drainage and cleansing are so apparent.

The Grand Jury suggest that the commissioners should employ the ordinary water conveniences that are found in private dwellings, hotels, etc., and especially is this a safe suggestion since an abundance of heat can be furnished from the steam heat in the Court House to prevent the freezing of water in pipes. This would require a larger house than the one now in use, and to carry out this accommodation it will be necessary to have a complete drain from Court House to creek. And the Grand Jury also recommend that this system of sewerage be extended to Jail building.

The Grand Jury, in their visit to the Jail, found nothing to recommend. There is a want of furniture, especially chairs. The rooms above and below need a larger supply of lime. The jail yard is in a slovenly condition and also the cellar.

S. S. LYON, Foreman.

We recommend that the commissioners repair at once the first county bridge below Howard, as it is a very old wooden structure in a dangerous condition, and should be replaced by a new one as soon as possible. Also that the county property lying between the Court House and Jail should be beautified and improved, and made so that it no longer bears the appearance of a waste and a discredit to a wealthy, populous county, but rather an ornament to the capital of the county, populous with citizens of taste and intelligence.

Also that the supervisor and surveyor go over the line of public road represented by Michael Myers, pros., and the line of the road view marked out, as, from the evidence before us, the line of the road view seems to be almost entirely obliterated.

The Wicked Telephone Girl.

"Hello!" said the telephone girl after a long silence, when Rev. Abimelech Prigg had rung up the central station half a dozen times and was about giving it up as a bad job.

"Hello!" he replied in early indignation. "Give me No. 111, Brother Bloodmen, please."

"Hello!" came in due time. "Whom am I listening to?"

"Rev. Abimelech Prigg, my daughter."

"Well, what do you wish to say, Father Prigg?"

"Are you alone?"

"Yes, sir."

"What time will your father return?"

"About 5 o'clock, sir."

"Well, I will call—here the telephone girl cut off the reverend gentleman, and instead of having the remainder of what he had to say,—"him up as soon as he returns," Miss Abigail got the answer of a young man whom the girl switched on in his stead, the young man being about to reply to an invitation by his loved one to "come over very soon," as follows:

"I'll be there in 10 minutes."

"What for?" Abigail asked in surprise.

"Oh, you know!"

"Indeed, I do not," she replied. "I should think I have a right to know why you are coming!"

"Well, don't be angry, my dear, and I will tell you."

"Well, proceed," she said stiffly.

"Well, then, to—bug you and—kiss you—"

"What!" she cried, angrily hanging up the receiver, and now her father has been silenced and fired out of the church bodily, and all the city feels scandalized by his presence except the telephone girl, who is trying to get him out of the scrape and is being talked about in connection with it as a result.

A Lively Old Gentleman.

Mr. Peter Koon, who resides below Boalsburg, attended court last week as a witness. On Tuesday evening he walked home, fifteen miles from Bellefonte, and walked back next morning. It was after 5 o'clock when he started from here and he reached home about 9 o'clock. Now, that's a big walk for anyone in the prime of life, but when we come to remember that Mr. Koon is 82 years of age it becomes very remarkable, and yet he considers it nothing extraordinary. Mr. Koon is active, erect and as cheerful as a young man, and does not know that he is growing old. He engages in all kind work and does as much as anyone.

EASILY ACCOUNTED FOR

The success of Baugh's $25 Phosphate as an excellent crop preserver and permanent improver of the soil, is easily accounted for. It is made of the bones of animals, and with Phosphate is a general adaptability as a plant food.

Every particle of which bones are composed, is a direct food of vegetables. We render this food immediately available in the $25 PHOSPHATE.

Which we claim to be a very special advantage, as it gives the crop an early start and sustains it until fully matured, besides permanently improving the soil.

Having thoroughly tested BAUGH'S $25 PHOSPHATE, side by side with other makes costing $25 and $50 per ton, I am satisfied that Baugh's is the best for first crop as well as permanent results. I had better wheat and corn more grass for two years where I used the $25 Phosphate. I will use no other kind and advise all farmers to buy Baugh's $25 Phosphate and use it to the benefit of their own ground.

Republican Delegate Elections and County Convention.

The Republican voters of Centre county are requested to attend at the respective voting places for the several election precincts, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1886, for the purpose of electing delegates to the County Convention; and the delegates chosen at that time will meet at the COURT HOUSE, in Bellefonte, on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER, 7, 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m., to place in nomination a COUNTY TICKET, appoint CONGRESSIONAL and SENATORIAL CONFEREES, and a COUNTY CHAIRMAN for 1887, and to transact such other business as may be deemed advisable for the best interests of the party.

Under the rules of the party, adopted at the County Convention of 1884, the number of delegates to which the several districts are entitled is as follows:—

Bellefonte, N. W.	5	Haines, East P.	1

The primary elections for delegates will be held under the supervision of the District Committee-men, who will see that proper election officers are designated and in attendance.

In the boroughs of Bellefonte, Centre Hall, Howard, Millheim, Millburg, Phillipsburg and Unionville and the townships of Howard, Potter and Snow Shoe, the polls will open at 7 o'clock P. M. and close at 9 p. m., and in the remaining districts will open at 2 p. m. and close at 5 p. m.

JNO. T. JOHNSTON,
Chairman County Committee.
A. A. DALE,
E. R. CHAMBERS, Secretaries.

Will Star at the County Fairs.

PHILADELPHIA, August 27.—The democratic headquarters for the campaign were formally opened at the Girard house in this city to-day. Chairman Hensel, of the state central committee, and all the state candidates, with the exception of Brennan, the nominee for auditor general, were closeted for two hours, and during that time the campaign was thoroughly discussed and outlined. After the meeting the candidates participated in a general hand-shaking with numerous local politicians who had called to pay their respects. Among the callers were several federal office holders in this city.

Next Thursday all of the candidates will visit Lancaster for the double purpose of receiving official notification of their nomination by the committee appointed for that purpose and visiting the fair to be held at that place, and on Friday they will visit the grangers' picnic at Williams Grove. Brennan's duties at Allegheny City prevented his attendance at the meeting to-day, but he will meet with the candidates at Lancaster, and will probably go with them to Williams Grove.

Grover as a Tramp.

PROSPECT HOUSE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The President was a weary man last night, for yesterday in company with Dr. Ward, he had explored a half dozen lakes and ponds, traveling in all a distance of twenty miles, one-fourth of the journey being made on foot. They took their trolling lines along, but as they returned without any fish neither of them was willing to admit that they had had a day's fishing. The one unhappy moment of the journey was when they passed Colonel A. H. Belo, of the Galveston News, on Long pond, who triumphantly held up for the inspection a four pound salmon trout.

A deer got into the lake in front of Saranac Inn while the President was eating his breakfast yesterday morning, and it was proposed to drive it ashore and give Mr. Cleveland a shot at it. Two guides pulled toward the animal with all their might, but like the bear which was in the lake the day before, it got ashore unhurt, notwithstanding that three balls from a Winchester rifle skirted over the water in dangerous proximity to it.

Sheridan and Drum.

WASHINGTON, August 27.—There is quite a state of feeling in the War Department between Adjutant General Drum and General Sheridan, but Drum has so far got the best of it. When Secretary Endicot left for Massachusetts to take a summer vacation the President selected the Adjutant General to be acting secretary in the Interior. Heretofore it has been the custom to designate the General of the Army to act in the absence of the secretary and Sheridan was greatly annoyed at having a junior officer placed over his head. Recently General Miles, who is conducting the campaign against Geronimo, sent a communication to the department for instructions in regard to co-operating with the Mexican troops in the pursuit of the Apaches. Drum turned the matter over to Sheridan, but Sheridan returned an icy reply that inasmuch as the Acting Secretary would have to assume all responsibility in forward to the instructions he had better attend personally to their preparation. Drum understood the purport of Sheridan's note to be that the Hero of Winchester did not want to have anything to do with him while he was acting Secretary, and since then has entirely ignored Sheridan. When they do meet in the transaction of necessary business it is said that all the inkstands in the room freeze up.

A State Chairman Resigns.
LANCASTER, August 31.—Professor H.

D. Patton, chairman of the prohibition state committee, to-day sent his resignation to the president of the state convention not being in harmony with the head of the ticket.

The Country Shaken by an Earthquake.

PHILADELPHIA, August 31.—About 9.53 this evening the shock of an earthquake was felt here lasting about thirty seconds. The vibrations were from west to east. At New York the shock was very perceptible. In the office of the Associated Press, on the upper floors of the Western Union building, the undulations were quite startling. The shock was felt in Cleveland where the people left the theatres and ran into the streets. At Detroit, where it was of short duration but so distinctly felt that the editorial force in the Free Press building made a great stampede for the street. At Cincinnati where the shock was not noticed much by persons on the street but alarmed those in the upper stories of the building. The printers in the Sun office started to run down stairs. Throughout the south the shock was very pronounced. In Raleigh it continued nearly six minutes. Buildings rocked, walls cracked, floors broke loose from their supports, chimneys fell and lamps were overturned. The motion of the earth was very decided. The streets rapidly filled with people, the scream of frightened persons could be heard and negroes were in great fear. Reports show that the shocks were felt all over the state. At Wilmington they were very severe and came near wrecking several buildings.

PITTSBURGH, August 31.—At 10 o'clock to-night an earthquake shock was felt in all parts of this city and Allegheny. The shock lasted about thirty seconds and created the greatest consternation in hotels and large buildings. In the Hotel Anderson and Hotel Duquesne the guests ran into the street panic-stricken. In the upper stories of the Western Union telegraph building the swaying of the structure was quite perceptible. Dewitt C. Billeby, of Media, Pa., a guest at the Hotel Duquesne, was sitting in a room on the fifth story with his son and daughter. He says the rocking of the building made him sick at the stomach. Looking out of the window he plainly saw the city hall, an immense stone structure just opposite, tremble and sway back and forth. On the South side the shock seems to have been more severe. Dishes were thrown from shelves, clocks stopped and the occupants rushed out screaming with terror. On South Nineteenth street the Lotus club, which was holding a meeting, quickly adjourned, and the members, who were greatly frightened, lost no time in leaving the building. Surrounding towns in all directions report a distinct vibration of the earthquake about the same hour. As far as heard from there was no serious damage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Two shocks of earthquake were felt here to-night and created considerable consternation. Several meetings in progress in different parts of the city were broken up by the frightened members thinking the buildings were falling and rushing into the street. At Albaugh's opera house the large audience became frightened by the shaking of the building and a stampede ensued. The occupants of the galleries, mainly gentlemen, jumped to their feet as soon as the shaking began and rushed pell-mell down stairs, falling over one another in their efforts to escape from the building and stopped for nothing until they reached the street. The audience in the lower part of the house was composed principally of ladies, but they were less frightened than the gentlemen and very few left their seats. The performers went on with their piece, and quiet was soon restored. No one was injured.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 31.—At Terre Haute two distinct shocks were felt. A large audience was present at the opera house attending a minstrel show. The building shook until the people became panic stricken, being under the impression that the structure was about to fall. Those in the galleries felt the shock most severely and they rose and made a rush for the exits. The crowds in other parts of the house followed. The women screamed and there was a struggling and rushing for the doors. Almost the entire audience fought their way to the street. Several policemen who were present stood in the doorways and attempted to keep the frightened people back. One man was pushed over the gallery, but saved himself by catching the railing. No one was seriously hurt. Reports from various quarters of the city state that sleepers were awakened by the swaying of beds and the rattling of windows.

MEADVILLE, Pa., August 31.—At 10 p. m. the shock of an earthquake was felt, followed immediately by a single shock, the whole lasting about 20 seconds. The streets were at once filled with people. The guests rushed out of the hotels in their night clothes, women and children were crying and screaming and every one was more or less alarmed. As far as learned no damage has been done.

A Manifesto from Alexander.

RUSCHKE, Aug. 30.—A manifesto has been issued by Prince Alexander. It approves the measures adopted by the Stambuloff regency; confirms the existing ministry and the appointment of Mutkouroff as commander-in-chief of the army; thanks the people and the army for their fidelity and resolute attitude in favor of independence; implores God's blessing and urges all to unite in promoting the welfare of Bulgaria.

Want Powderly for Congress.

WILKESBARRE, August 30.—The democrats of the First legislative district nominated J. R. Ridgway Wright for assembly. Judge Stanley Woodward, who would have received the unanimous democratic nomination for congress in the Twelfth district, published a letter in the Evening Leader this afternoon in which he absolutely declines the nomination. An effort will be made to induce Master Workman Powderly to accept the nomination.

A Fatal Accident.

FRANKLIN, Mass., August 31.—Four men took refuge from the rain this afternoon under a car standing upon a side track of the New York and New England railroad, when it was started by a switching engine. Hugh McCloskey was instantly killed and Joseph Hood fatally injured.

Explosion in a Mine.

SCRANTON, August 30.—An explosion of gas occurred in Fairlawn colliery resulting in the death of five men and the serious injury of two others. The August quota of coal had been mined and no men were employed there. It was soon learned, however, that a small party of men had gone into the mine to clean up their chambers. A rescuing party at once entered the mine but their progress was necessarily slow. They came at once to a point where they found repairs necessary and returned to the foot of the mine for more material, when they learned that groans had been heard in the east gangway. They worked over that way and found the party who had gone in the mine before the accident. Three of them were alive and three were dead. The killed were Hugh Connors, of Bellevue, about 45 years of age; he leaves a wife and five small children. Edward Ganghan, aged 45 years; he leaves a wife and eight small children. Michael Pryie, aged 44 years, he was married but leaves no children.

The first man brought to the surface was John Nafin. He is about 25 years of age and unmarried. He is badly burned about the face and hands. John Kerrigan was alive when found and talked the strongest of all, but he died before being brought to the surface. He was about 55 years old and married. Next was John Connor. He is about 21 years old and unmarried. He has two bare scalp wounds, an ugly cut on the knee and another on his arm. His face and hands are badly bruised. He was taken to the hospital. The body of Edward Price, the fire boss, was found about 150 feet from the others.

A Barn Burned.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., August 30.—On Saturday night during the heavy thunder storm, the large barn on what is known as the Maguire farm, two miles north of Petersburg, occupied by Cassius McClure, and owned by his father, William McClure, was struck by lightning, and with its contents, consisting of 200 dozen of wheat, 2,400 dozen of oats, several tons of hay and a lot of valuable farming implements, was destroyed. Loss, $2,300; no insurance.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

Our Regular Letter from Howard.

HOWARD, August 30.
On Friday of last week Mr. Homer Lucas, of this place, was out hunting. He finally came across a pine squirrel, took aim and fired. The gun exploded and Mr. Lucas was really hurt more than the squirrel. We are happy to say that Mr. Lucas is out and doing well, but have reason to believe that the squirrel is doing better.

The best selection of teachers has been made for the schools in the township of Howard. Kennedy school is the only one for which a teacher has not been chosen. The schools will be taught as follows: Furnace school, J. W. Smith, of Howard; Askey's school, Mr. John Leathers, of Mt. Eagle; Gravel Point school, Mr. William Woodward, of Howard township; Frog Pond school, Mr. Theodore Fletcher, Howard township; Mt. Eagle school, Mr. Reuben Fletcher, of Howard; Fairview school, Mr. Hicklen, of Mt. Eagle.

Most of these teachers we know, and will say that they are worthy of the confidence placed in them.

The Howard band was at Marsh Creek on Saturday last to play for a picnic.

Mr. George Wistar came home on Monday from Washington, D. C., on a visit, to return to his duties again on Friday. He is in the Treasury Department.

Quite a number of people about here are complaining of illness and some are really serious. The symptoms are the same as of typhoid fever.

We hope the rain we had on Monday will cool and purify the air as the heat has been intense.

Mr. Charles E. Neff has left for Milton to work at the mason trade on the walls of the new hoop mill.

Extracting teeth without pain sounds nice, but very few of those who tried it will believe it. They say it hurt severely and some few are sick of the operation. Yet, what next? We are waiting.

Rev. Owen Hicks stopped here for a short visit. He looks well and is doing well.

ALERT.

Three Items from Howard.

A new correspondent sends us the following, under date August 31:

Mr. John M. Long, of the firm of W. H. Long & Co., started for Ohio last Friday. His business not being known, it is supposed he has gone on a wild goose chase.

Mr. Jos. Smith is numbered among the unfortunates. While unloading some of the heavy lumber for the new Howard mill building one of his fingers was badly crushed.

Four of the same men who worked at the erection of the old Howard mill building are engaged upon the new structure. They are: Chas. Sayers, millwright; John Yeager, brick layer; Michael Ketner, mason, and James Butler, laborer.

As the telegraph dispatches tell us, the country was shaken by an earthquake shock Tuesday night from the Atlantic coast as far west as Illinois. The shocks seemed to be unusually severe and extended. Several persons in this place say they heard what seemed like an explosion Tuesday night between 10 o'clock and midnight. We do not imagine that it could have been the earthquake, however, as the sensation would not have been an explosion, but a trembling of Mother Earth. We have heard of several persons on Allegheny street falling out of bed at that time, which seems to be more like the way an earthquake would affect people. A young lady this morning complained that her nose felt as if it was broken. She probably kissed her young man farewell at the front gate just as the trembling earth sent their faces together with unusual force. So we believe we have given good evidence that the earthquake did not miss our town.

Forepaugh's Tented Show.

Of the unprecedented popularity of this famous entertainment to be here on Tuesday, Oct. 12th, there can be no doubt. It has taken the leading place among tented amusements and, upon its recent exhibition in Boston, the papers of that city say so. The Daily Post, of June 15th, in a long and elaborate comment, makes the appended statement.

"The famous Forepaugh circus began a week of entertainment in its mammoth pavilion on the Union ball grounds yesterday afternoon. In the morning there was a street parade through the resident and business sections of the city, with a magnificent display of chariots, a large herd of elephants, headed by the huge Bolivar; fine horses, Cleopatra's barge, cowboys, bands and the shrill calipoes. The first performance was given in the afternoon the different acts taking place in two rings and on an elevated stage and around the hippodrome course. The equestrian feats were excellent, the riding of Miss Annie Carroll, on a horse that would march and polka, elicited much applause. The trick elephants Pickaniuni and Sullivan were particularly good, the latter in a boxing match keeping the audience in roars of laughter. Among other features were exhibition of bicycle riding, trapeze acts, Daisy Belmont on the revolving globe, contortionists, bareback riding, and scores of other interesting events, the whole concluding with a series of exciting hippodrome races, including Roman chariots, elephants, steeple chases and wheelbarrow races. Performances are given every afternoon and evening, and are matchlessly perfect and without comparison."

—For the benefit of the ladies of Bellefonte we print an extract from the early colonial laws of New Jersey. Some one at our elbow suggests that such a law should be in force at this time in Pennsylvania. Our lady readers should peruse it carefully and give their verdict in regard to it. "That all women of whatever age, rank, profession, or degree, whether virgins, maids, or widows, who shall after this act, impose upon, seduce and betray into matrimony any of his Majesty's subjects by virtue of scents, cosmetics, washes, paints, artificial teeth, false hair, or high-heeled shoes, shall incur the penalty of the law now in force against witchcraft and like misdemeanor."

—A compositor in the REPUBLICAN office has made a wonderful discovery. It is that the use of the white of an egg on the fingers, while distributing, facilitates that operation. He don't intend to apply for a patent and anyone can use it. Francis Speer remarks that precaution should be taken not to lean up against the rack, imposing stone or other substantial object while the egg rests in the compositor's pocket, as it is liable to break unexpectedly with disastrous consequences.

—Rev. Joseph H. Barnard, a former pastor of the Presbyterian church here, who is now located in the West, has recently been visiting in the East. He arrived in Bellefonte on his way home to Madison, Indiana, on Tuesday, and will spend some time among his friends here. He is greatly admired as a preacher and pastor. It is expected that he will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening.

—Quite a number of people consult the weather characters displayed daily in front of Zeller's drug store, to find out the probabilities in regard to the weather. They are usually correct.

—The tooth-puller attracts great crowds, but we prefer to trust to the regular dentist to extract our ivories.

—The Zion band furnished the music for the Beaver Home Club meeting Tuesday evening and played very finely.

—The lively music of the band Tuesday evening attracted many people to the street.

—Wonder if the peanut vendors on the Diamond are making millions?

—September is here.

SPECIAL MENTION.

When We Demoralize the Stomach.

By excesses or imprudence in eating, we cannot hope to escape the consequences for any great length. The most robust digestion must succumb to abuse of that important function. But supposing that we have been foolish enough to enfeeble the stomach, is the damage irreparable? By no means. The dyspeptic has only to do two things to insure his ultimate recovery. First, he should adopt an easily digestible diet. Second, he should use with regularity and persistence Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading gastric invigorant of the age. The multi-form symptoms of dyspepsia, and the almost invariably attendant disorders, biliousness and constipation, will assuredly cease to persecute the sufferer if the above advice is attended to. Who that has suffered the torments that chronic indigestion inflicts will neglect to take advantage of a remedy which, if the most positive evidence of the medical profession and the public is to be received with due credence, is an absolute specific for the complaint.

—Among the recent publications of music we find but two songs published by Ign. Fischer, Toledo, O., that are really worthy of special mention, Tennyson's "Break, Break, Break, on Thy Cold Gray Stones, O Sea," music by the well known Frederick H. Pease, and Longfellow's "Stay at Home My Heart and Rest," music by W. A. Ogden, an author whose works rank among the most popular of the present day. Price of each 40c.

A FAVORITE REMEDY.—Simmons' Liver Regulator is one of the most meritorious and popular preparations offered to the public. The merits of this remedy commend it to the public as a standard to be kept constantly in the family. It has the most unqualified endorsement of thousands of our most prominent citizens in all parts of the country, who have used it and testify to its excellent medical and curative properties.

PARTIES INTENDING TO travel will find they have been planning to advantage if they include in their list of necessities a supply of VINEGAR BITTERS POWDERS. These powders have the same effect as the world-renowned VINEGAR BITTERS, whose essential properties they embody.

Medical.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for Hood's SARSAPARILLA. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of Hood's SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.
Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your SARSAPARILLA. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with humor. She was low-spirited, troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your SARSAPARILLA she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your SARSAPARILLA. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,
A. L. HINCKLEY,

Farm Implements, and Fertilizers.

FARMERS SUPPLIES!

PLOWS.

Thorough plowing and pulverization of the soil is the foundation upon which the successful farmer builds his prosperity. To accomplish this, the character of the plow becomes a matter of the first importance. We present the

to our farmer friends with the assurance that it is not a new invention; nevertheless, it embodies all the improvements known to plow manufacturers. It has an established and enviable reputation, of MANY YEARS STANDING, as being the best bevel land side plow now in use. We assure our friends that a BEVEL LAND SIDE PLOW is superior to any straight land side plow.

The ROLAND CHILLED PLOW is manufactured of the best material, and is of the most perfect workmanship. The parts subject to wear are so chilled as to give strength as well as durability.

Its construction warrants light draft, and it runs so steady that a boy who can drive the team can man the plow—either for two or three horses—and execute the best mechanical plowing.

It will clean or scour in any soil from the start. It is furnished with solid or slip-pointed shares for ordinary or deep plowing. It is equally a successful plow in soft, hard or gravelly soil, and will turn a furrow up hill as complete as on the level ground.

We invite a critical examination of the construction of this plow as well as a thorough test in plowing.

We offer it for sale at remarkably low prices, and on liberal terms.

We keep a stock of shares and other parts for the OLIVER and SYRACUSE Chilled Plows.

CULTIVATORS.

HENCH RIDING CULTIVATORS

are the farmers favorite, and need no commendation from us. We are the authorized agents for their sale in this part of Centre county. The CHAMPION is the new Hench walking cultivator, a remarkably neat and well constructed implement, and is a credit to the skill and workmanship of these leading cultivator manufacturers. We invite those in want of cultivators to inspect those on exhibition at our store. We can assure our friends that there are no other cultivators in the market equal to the HENCH.

One-horse Cultivators and Shovel Plows that defy competition in prices.

HAY RAKES. HAY TEDDERS.

We are selling the CHAMPION horse hay rake for $16.50, and a better rake for $17.50. We sell the TIGER SELF-DUMP hay rake, which is the best hay rake in the world, at astonishingly low prices.

The large crop of grass now growing, will be hard to handle unless farmers use hay tedders. The

BURDICK

HAY TEDDER is the BEST.

HAY FORKS! Double Harpoon Hay Forks. Price, $1.25 each.

GRAIN DRILLS.

We are the authorized agents for the sale of the CHAMPION and PENNSYLVANIA GRAIN DRILLS. These drills are complete in construction, and are guaranteed to sow grain, seed and fertilizers in the best farmer-like manner. We are prepared to furnish these drills at prices which will justify farmers in buying them. Farmers in want of drills will promote their interests by calling on us and examine the drills and prices for themselves.

Buggies and Platform Spring Wagons.

A customer after examining our spring wagon a few days ago, said we had the best wagons for the least money he had seen in Centre county.

Auburn Road and Farm Wagons.

These wagons are made to our order, with steel shafts or steel axles, and we offer them to our customers with full confidence that they are the best wagons ever sold in this vicinity.

Fruit Evaporators. The outlook for a large crop of good fruit is very favorable. A fruit evaporator does not cost so much money, nevertheless, it can be made more profitable than a cider mill. An elegant opportunity for families of two or three boys to learn a new business and make some money. Call and examine the sampler at our store.

FERTILIZERS.

We sell six grades of fertilizers; we assure the farmers of Centre county that we deal in no shoddy goods. In purchasing, the quality is our first consideration and we guarantee every grade of fertilizer we sell is of the quality represented.

CROCKERS' BUFFALO HONEST FERTILIZER

of which we are Sole Agents in this territory, needs no commendation at our hands. It has always realized to the farmer a fair equivalent for the money invested.

In addition to the above we have arranged for the balance of our stock with the Chemical Co. of Canton, located in a suburb of the city of Baltimore, Md.

This company is composed of the Bakers of Baltimore, who formerly conducted the business in their own name and is a house of undoubted reputation for furnishing exactly what they represent.

From this company we obtain five grades of fertilizers: Dissolved South Carolina Bone, Dissolved South Carolina Bone and Potash, Soluble Alkaline Bone Phosphate, Resurgam Guano and Bakers Standard Guano; either of which is of the highest standard of quality in its class.

We sold this brand of DISSOLVED SOUTH CAROLINA BONE or ROCK in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania State College last fall—1885—in competition with two other brands, all of which were analyzed at that institution. The Rock we sold proved to be fifty-eight cents per ton more valuable than one of its competitors, and four dollars and forty-eight cents per ton more valuable than the other, all of which were sold to the farmers at about the same price. This fact should induce farmers to buy fertilizers from dealers who know what they are selling and have some common honesty to sell what they represent.

We invite a careful inspection of the quality of the fertilizers we offer for sale, as well as the price of the same, including such information as we are always prepared to furnish thereto.

HYDRAULIC CEMENT.

We have been induced to enter into the cement business, for the reason that Mr. WILLIAM SHORTLIDGE, a long connection with the Water Works of Bellefonte gave him an extended opportunity to see the effects of using poor and standard cements. We can assure our customers that the cements in which we deal are of uniform quality and of the highest standard of excellence.

We carry a stock of AKRON, ROSENDALE "Hoffman Brand," and the ENGLISH PORTLAND.

The AKRON has been manufactured during the last 60 years and has been used in the construction of some of the most elaborate Railroad bridges and reservoirs in the United States. Thomas Collins, the well known railroad contractor, informs us that he has used thousands of barrels of it, and recommends it as being a most excellent article. The AKRON cement is being used in the construction of the Croton aqueduct, which will convey water forty-two miles to the city of New York. This of itself, is a sufficient guarantee of its superior quality.

We sell the ROSENDALE cement "Hoffman Brand," which is so well known that it needs no commendation at our hands. We keep in stock the ENGLISH PORTLAND cement, the best artificial cement in the world.

We exercise our best judgment in purchasing stock, and spare no efforts to furnish what we represent and trust the community will appreciate our motives by favoring us with a share of their patronage.

There is a growing practice of vendors calling on farmers to sell them their supplies, who succeed in obtaining higher prices for what they sell, with dinner and horse feed thrown in, than the same articles can be purchased of us at our store. We invite farmers to investigate this matter, examine articles and prices before making up their minds to purchase. Vendors are ALWAYS WELCOME whether they buy or not, and WE TAKE PLEASURE IN EXHIBITING WHAT WE HAVE TO SELL.

25 ELEPHANTS 25

Elephants that speak with eloquent action. Elephants which demonstrate superior sense. Elephants in pyramids, musical accord, athletic contests, and whirling in waltz and quadrille. The smallest and all earth's biggest grown Bolivar. 10-foot tall giraffe, twice the largest Hippopotamus this side of the Nile, enough beasts to overflow 120 cages, and without doubt three times the most stupendous menagerie ever gathered and exhibited under tents. 300 circus performers carefully culled from every circus and amphitheatre in Europe. First time here. Ten tremendous leaping English greyhounds from the hunting parks of the English nobility. Museums of savage people and living human freaks. 20 newly imported Russian, Italian and Arabian stallions. Bicycle battles, conical and classical roller skating and a cyclone of mid-air breath-battling deeds in four rings, and on the grand elevated stage a whirlwind of hippodrome races. Fun! Three comical clown elephants. One rides a velocipede in mid air. Another traverses a high wire and another knocks out an expert pugilist in a boxing bout. The confessed funniest jesters that ever set audience and table in a roar. Comedian pigs, donkeys and canines and 12 motley monarchs of mirth.

NOTE! After having witnessed the superb, original and gigantic performances of this brilliant show, there will be no desire left to see more, because there is actually and truthfully nothing more to see. Bellefonte Republican.

By EDWARD T. TUTEN.

In the Buckeye State.

CONVENTION HALL, COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 25.—In the Republican State Convention, this morning, the committee on permanent organization selected Governor Foraker for chairman and D. Lanning, of Columbus, secretary. It was learned that Senator Sherman would not arrive in time to perform the duties as chairman.

The following nominations were made: Secretary of state, General James S. Robinson; supreme judge, Marshall G. Williams, of Fayette; clerk of supreme court, U. H. Heister school commissioner, Eli T. Tappan; member of board of public works, W. M. Hahn.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—At 10:37 o'clock this morning car No. 158, in charge of Driver Wickless and Conductor Smith rolled out of the depot and started on its trip down town. A yell arose from loungers on Seventh avenue and men began to pour in from the side streets and the neighboring saloons until, in a few moments, a mob of excited men filled the wide avenue and started after the car. The car went along for about six blocks easily, with an occasional stone, until it reached the Broadway switch. Here an effort was made to derail the car by placing a piece of wood in the switch. This proved unsuccessful, but a few minutes later a collision occurred at Forty-second and Boulevard line. The two cars came together with great force, but no injury beyond a shaking up occurred.

The mob hooted and jeered the driver and several stones were thrown against the car. The police charged the crowd and dispersed them for a moment. In the attempt to get away from the police the glass door of a large store was smashed. Further on the mob again appeared and overturned a large dry goods truck on the track. This the police lifted by main strength from the track, and the car proceeded on its way amid the yells and dense hootings of the crowd. Stones and bricks were again thrown against the car, smashing a ventilator.

A crowd of fifteen or twenty strikers seized one of the Third avenue cars as it was passing Forty-seventh street this afternoon, and after driving the passengers out, turned it over on its side. An open car which followed was next attacked and upset. When the driver showed fight a revolver was pointed at him. Great excitement attended these acts. The appearance of policemen set the rioting strikers to flight. They were chased, but only one, Edward McEvoy, conductor, was overtaken. He was locked up in default of bail. A posse of policemen arrested thirteen and set the cars aright, after which travel was resumed.

The Street Car Strike.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Broadway and Seventh avenue company began to run out more cars this morning, and the police reserves and the force of Captain Killien's precinct were on hand in increased numbers. A roundsman and five patrolmen were detailed for each car with instructions to club any one who interfered with it. The driver of a wagon obstructed the first car at the crossing at Forty-fourth street, when the mob attacked the car and threw it off the track. A wild scene occurred for a few minutes and thousands of persons were attracted to the spot. Squads of police came down and began some promiscuous clubbing. Several arrests were made, and the triangular square at the junction of Broadway and Seventh avenue was cleared with the exception of the crowds that lined the sidewalks on the Seventh avenue side. Captain Killien came down from the depot and took charge of the police and soon restored order.

Higbee to be Arrested.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 25.—Gov. Pattison, Deputy Attorney General Snodgrass, District Attorney McColl, and J. Howard Gurdell, of Philadelphia, special counsel for the commonwealth, held a consultation at the executive department this afternoon on the preparation of the criminal suits against those who are alleged to have mismanaged the soldiers' orphans' schools of this state. General Wagner's recent report was examined closely and will be used on the trial.

It was decided to bring suit against Superintendent Higbee and thirty specifications of wrong doing have been formulated against him. He is now in Michigan, but when he returns a warrant will be issued for his arrest and the case will go before the November term of the Dauphin county court. The owners of the schools will not be proceeded against until Higbee's case is disposed of.

Fire in a Coal Slope.

WILKESBARRE, August 27.—A fire broke out in the Nottingham slope at Plymouth this afternoon and is still raging. Timbers and cars are burning in all directions. There were three hundred men at work in the slope at the time of the breaking out of the fire, and great excitement prevailed at the surface concerning their possible fate. Fortunately, however, they all made their escape in safety through a second opening. The slope is owned and operated by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre coal company. The fire was caused by sparks from a dinky engine. A suspension of work in several gangways will be necessitated, and over five hundred men will be thrown out of employment for some time to come.

The Prohibitionists.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 25.—Mr. Barker announced that the state committee had selected S. D. Hunter, of Chester, for temporary chairman, and L. Newton Pearce, of Philadelphia, for secretary. A. A. Stevens of Blair county, was made permanent chairman. At half-past 5 o'clock the convention adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. The nomination of Charles S. Wolfe for governor by the prohibition convention is a foregone conclusion although A. A. Barker of Cambria has not given up hope.

Refused a New Trial.

St. Louis, August 25.—A special from Osage Mission, Kansas, says a new trial has been refused Willie Sells, the 16-year-old boy, recently convicted of the murder of his father, mother, brother and sister. Sentence was deferred until this afternoon.

The Prohibition Ticket.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 26.—The convention at 3 p. m. proceeded to nominate a state ticket. Charles S. Wolfe was named for governor by Mr. Godwin, of Philadelphia. It was seconded by Mr. Cornell, of Allegheny, and Mr. Bally, Philadelphia. He was nominated by acclamation amid loud cheers. A. A. Barker of Cambria, was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation. Charles G. Hawley, of Lackawanna, was nominated for auditor general; John M. Emory, of Lawrence, for secretary of internal affairs and Rev. John M. Palmer, colored, of Pittsburgh, for congressman-at-large, all by acclamation.

How the Accident Occurred.

Special to the Altoona Tribune. HOUTZDALE, August 26.—John M. Adams, one of the men hurt at the Houtzdale opera house accident on Wednesday afternoon, died at 8:30 p. m. Witter, the contractor, is not considered dangerously hurt and is able to sit up and converse with visitors. Following is the report of investigating committee appointed to examine into the cause of the accident:

We, the undersigned committee, appointed by the Houtzdale opera house company (limited) to examine into the cause of the accident by which a portion of the opera house, now in course of construction, fell on Wednesday, Aug. 25, and by which John M. Adams, one of the workmen, lost his life, and John A. Witter, the contractor, was seriously injured, beg leave to report as follows:

That having examined the said building, and also having examined John A. Witter, the contractor and builder, under oath, we find that the accident was not caused by reason of any faulty construction of said building, but that as constructed it was perfectly safe and sound. We further find that the accident was caused by reason of the contractor and his employees removing the braces and prying the first trusses out of position.

Three Important Items.

WINDSOR, Vt., Aug. 26.—Inquiries this morning show that Senator Everts' injuries are two extensive scalp wounds and a severe sprain and injury to the left leg. He is quite comfortable after a good night's sleep. Miss Matthews' injuries consist of several bruises, but she is not seriously hurt. Mr. C. C. Perkins' body will arrive in Boston to-morrow.

ELMIRA, N. Y., August 26.—The body of the Rev. James C. Beecher, who committed suicide yesterday, has been embalmed and will be kept several days. No word has yet been received from any of the family.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 26.—The Republican state convention to-day made the following nominations: Cyrus G. Luce, governor; James H. McDonald, lieutenant governor; Gil R. Osman, secretary of state; George L. Metz, treasurer; Henry H. Apton, and John general; Moses Taggart, attorney general; Roscoe D. Dix, commissioner of land office; Joseph Estabrook, superintendent of public instruction; S. S. Babcock, for member of the state board of education.

The Fatal Coal Oil.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Aug. 26.—The oft-repeated warnings against the use of coal oil as an adjunct in making fires, it seems, have never reached Coalmont, this county, where yesterday a terrible fatality occurred by this means. Mrs. Mary Brewer, wife of James Brewer, a miner of Coalmont, repaired to the kitchen for the purpose of rekindling the fire in the cook stove preparatory to getting supper. Finding a few remaining sparks in the grate she determined to use coal oil in reviving the flames. Removing the stove griddle, Mrs. Brewer stooped over the opening and while pouring on the oil blew her breath on the sparks in the stove in the hope of accelerating the oil to ignite. A terrific explosion soon followed, the oil had done its work, and the unfortunate woman was thrown with great violence to the opposite side of the room, her clothing being a perfect mass of flame. The shock of the explosion partly stunned Mrs. Brewer, and by the time she regained her senses the upper portion of her clothing had been burned off while the flames were rapidly consuming her flesh.

Being thus unable to escape from the house or make any effectual resistance against the flames which enveloped her, the suffering woman was left to her awful fate, and not for some time was her condition discovered. When found her hair and clothes had been burned away, leaving her body a charred and blackened mass of flesh. So fierce had been the flames that on her left arm the flesh was almost completely burned off, leaving the bones protruding. Every effort was made to relieve her sufferings after her condition was discovered, but they were of no avail, she having died this morning in horrible agony, just 12 hours after the accident. She was 24 years of age and leaves a husband and 3 small children. The interment will take place on Saturday afternoon.

Of course when a man is sound and well he don't care a copper for all the medicine on the face of the earth. He has no use for it. But when disease is eating his life out he wants the right prescription and he wants it right away. For that reason all that know what Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is turn to that for help, and it never disappoints them. And it is just as beneficial to new friends as it is to old ones. Pleasant to the palate and gentle in its action.

The Car Drivers' Strike Off.

NEW YORK, August 27.—Through the mediation of State Arbitrator Donovan an agreement was reached late this afternoon by which it is understood the tie up on the Belt line will be declared off, and cars will resume running to-morrow morning. Donovan had a conference with the officers of the road and made a proposition, which, it is understood, involved some concessions by the men. The result was communicated to Inspector Steers and the police went away.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. 11 11 ly

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Oh, but the dust is thick in the country roads.

—Mrs. Sarah Harter, of Centre Hall, is confined to bed by illness.

—Mr. C. W. Atherton, of Philipsburg, will build a handsome residence on McClellan's hill, that place.

—The Central Synod of the Lutheran church will meet at Centre Hall, Tuesday, September 29.—Reporter.

—Every Republican who is not certain that his name is on the registry list should have it placed there at once.

—The Black Diamonds were the victors in a base ball game with the Little Coon Troubadour nine on Wednesday.

—Base ball is one of the most interesting amusements at Centre Hall and various other places throughout the county.

—Mr. George Baird and friend, of West Chester, are guests of friends in this place. The former is a brother of Mr. John Baird.

—Rebersburg young men keep up an interesting debating society even in hot weather. Some of the discussions are pretty warm at times.

—Extensive bill boards have been erected on the railroad property opposite the depot, which will soon be gorgeously decorated with circus posters.

—The flouring mill in course of erection at Oak Hall will be equipped for the roller process and will be the seventh mill of that kind in this county.

—Isaac Haupt sent a box of his best cigars as far West as Montana Territory, on Thursday. Thus the produce of the Bellefonte factories go all over the world.

—Calvin Crouse, of Rebersburg, is suffering with painful injuries to his head. He and John Stires were thrown from a wagon, the former striking the ground violently.

—The John M. Palmer (colored) named in a dispatch as the Prohibition candidate for congressman-at-large, is Rev. John M. Palmer, a former pastor of the A. M. E. church of this place.

—On Saturday, September 11, there will be a very large picnic at the Penn caves. The party will be composed of people from Penns and Brush valleys and all the bands of that vicinity.

—The verdict in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Wm. P. Dehaas, which appeared in the Republican "not guilty," should have read "guilty" which makes quite a difference to all the parties concerned.

—General S. W. Crawford is completing a paper for publication in the Philadelphia Weekly Press series of war articles, detailing the action of the Pennsylvania Reserves at Gettysburg, in connection of the statements made by Major General McLaws (Confederate) recently published in the Weekly Press.

—In court Friday morning Wm. P. Dehaas was sentenced, the various specifications of his sentence involving all the cost for the support of the child for seven years. Other sentences were: Jacob Kinney to six months in county jail, for theft, and a man named Delige to 20 days in jail, for violating the liquor law.

—Mr. Frank Miller, the advance representative of the North Carolina Troubadours, went to Tyrone on Wednesday, and made arrangements to reopen the Tyrone Opera House on Saturday evening, September 4th, with his excellent troupe. The people of Tyrone are fortunate in having so excellent a troupe to begin their entertainment season.

—The people in the lower parts of the town waste too much water. It is utterly impossible to provide for the extravagant use of it that people are now making. It renders the mud an inch deep in the streets, it rushes down the gutters, soaks the lawns, and as a consequence, there are hours at a time when it does not reach the higher parts of the borough.

—The people who are visiting Snow Shoe this season, especially those who make the Mountain House their rallying place, are enthusiastic of its praises. They have experienced greater physical improvement there than at any other place they have been. The Mountain House, under the care of Mrs. Nolan, has all the comforts of a home. She is an energetic lady and devotes herself to the comfort of her guests.

—The festival at Fillmore, some time ago, for the benefit of the M. E. church, resulted in making the treasury of the church about $72 richer. It has also expended for debt and there are other debts to be paid. So another similar festival will probably be given soon and a special free train will be run over the Buffalo Run railroad. The great success of the former festival renders the success of the next one equally certain.

—Some time ago a lady with a baby in her arms walked along the railroad and over the trestle on the Lemont branch. In doing so she made a misstep and fell into the water. The mother and babe would both have been drowned, as the water is deep at that place, had not assistance been promptly at hand. Our reference to this accident at this time is to impress upon all the importance of caution when crossing such places. It is better, perhaps, to go all the way around by the road than to travel on the railroad merely because it shortens the distance.

A Handsome Residence Enlarged and Improved.

Early this week it was our pleasure to obtain an interior inspection of President Judge A. O. Furst's beautiful residence, which has been extensively remodeled and improved during the summer. Its unique and graceful exterior charms all who see it, but only the improvements within give a proper conception of their value and true taste. Superior judgment has designed them and carried them through to perfect completion.

The porch in front is spacious and comfortable and a wide entrance ushers those who pass it into a hallway beautiful in proportions and decoration. The glass above the front door softens the light of midday and diffuses it in many prismatic colors through the interior. At the rear of the hall, over the stairway, is also a window, in which the glass is equally beautiful in design and rich in coloring, the tinted lights blending as they meet.

In the parlor, at the left, only a few changes were made. Handsome plate glass, clear as crystal, was placed in the windows, making more perfect the view without. Throughout the house the windows are large, the glass beautifully transparent and perfect, and the view from them entirely unobstructed. The sitting room, on the right, impressed us, at first glance, as the most cheerful apartment in the house. It is finished in rich mahogany which is very agreeable to the eye and the pink tinted walls set it off to greater perfection. Further to the rear is the dining room, which is also cheerful as to give the appetite renewed zest and pleasure.

On the second floor the hallway is beautiful and spacious and the sleeping apartments so pleasant as to woo the most distracted mind into the comfortable and happy embrace of Morpheus, but it is not until the third floor is reached that a true idea is afforded of the additional space the change has contributed to the house. From a charming vestibule at the top of the stairs four or five doors lead into as many apartments. One of these is set apart by the Judge as a study, another is the sleeping apartment of the Judge's sons and yet another is not at present occupied. In these rooms the window frames swing open from an attachment in the centre, and sending the entering air upward to the ceiling, make ventilation much more perfect. Beneath the windows and at several places about the rooms are hard wood seats, elegantly finished and polished, which, however, can be opened at will and stored with clothes or articles which are meant to be kept out of sight. These are the acme of convenience and are somewhat in the style of a seaman's locker.

The house is heated throughout by steam on the indirect method, radiating a congenial warmth, which can be better appreciated in winter than at the present time. The electric light reaches to the third floor, arranged in the most modern manner, and when the light illuminates through the richly colored globes the effect is magnificent. The view from the upper portion of the house commands the entire town, and then extends out to the rich fields, symmetrical hills and wooded mountains beyond. The graceful, limped streams can be seen winding their way from out the gorges, through the fields and then among the factories to which they furnish power. Thus the judicial mind, calmed by the comforts within, expanded by the contemplation of the varied scenery without, can more truly be the source of that eternal justice which rules the courts of the county.

A Brilliant Wedding at Nittany Hall.
The beautiful residence of ex-Sheriff Schaffer, of Nittany Hall, was the scene, on Wednesday evening, of a brilliant wedding, the high contracting parties being Miss H. Kate Schaffer, the bright and charming daughter of Mr. Schaffer, and Mr. J. H. Allison, of Cedar Run, Clinton county. The occasion was rendered the more notable by the presence of from seventy-five to one hundred invited guests, including about eight from this place, two or three from Milesburg and several from Unionville, Philipsburg and other neighboring towns. Promptly at the hour appointed for the ceremony, the happy couple took their positions in front of the officiating minister, Rev. Mr. Brubaker, of Snyderstown. The bride was attended by two maids of honor—Miss Ida Gerberich of this place, and Miss Hassler, of New Holland, Pa. The wedding march was performed by Miss Della Lawall, a friend of the bride, from Catasauqua, Pa. The dress of the bride was of watered satin or the most fashionable light-grey tint, and was made with perfect taste. The ornaments were handsome jewels and natural flowers. It is conceded that she never looked prettier. While the ceremony was in progress the maids of honor—both looking as lovely as a picture—held a ribbon stretched across the room, and when the final words were said and the minister was about to offer his congratulations, Miss Gerberich tied the ribbon into a firm knot, emblematic of the importance and permanence of the wedding tie. Very choice refreshments were served and the pleasures of the evening continued until a late hour. The most sincere congratulations were tendered the happy couple. Some of the guests from Bellefonte did not return until next day.

A Summary of Howard Happenings.

August 14, 1886.

The M. E. Sunday-school festival was a pretty good success, a great many people from a distance being present. Hon. John A. Woodward favored us with his presence, as also did Capt. Bannison and several other distinguished persons. Everything went off well, and we are very thankful for the great assistance given us by our Reformed friends. A few persons from other denominations did all they could for us.

There was another festival in town on a small scale. We did not hear how they made out, but one thing we do know—it did not hurt the M. E. festival in the least. We are thankful for the help the Howard Cornet Band gave us, with music as well as with desires and good feeling, and we are willing at any time to return the favor.

Miss Grace Dunham came home on the 23d inst. She had been away for some time, teaching school.

DIED.—On the 23d inst. Charles Owen, infant son of J. W. Smith. The child had been sick for some few weeks of dysentery, of which he died.

Mr. Reuben Pletcher came home Monday evening and left again on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Pletcher is canvassing for books in Tyrone, which, by the way, is a new business for him. Yet he has done pretty well so far.

Quite a number of our folks went to Bigler camp meeting on Sunday. They went to Beech Creek station and took the excursion train run from there. They say they enjoyed the trip very much.

ALERT.

Fifth Anniversary of the R. H. B.

Thirty ladies and twenty gentlemen met at the home of Daniel Rhoads, Esq., on Linn street, Thursday evening, to celebrate the fifth anniversary of that organization of young men known as the "R. H. B." While there are certain principles of the highest order which form the foundation of this society, by which its members are controlled, yet its immediate aim is chiefly for pleasure and that object it never fails to accomplish. The fifth anniversary will long be remembered among the most successful and enjoyable in its history.

The spacious grounds surrounding Mr. Rhoads' residence were beautifully illuminated and, without as well as within, the appearance was inviting and festive, indicating a hearty welcome and royal entertainment. The amusements embraced all the elegant and entertaining diversions of modern social gatherings, the softest, sweetest, liveliest music being rendered by the new and popular orchestra composed of Messrs. Girodierly and Lyon.

Refreshments of the most tempting description were served out doors, where amid the flashing lights of man's invention and beneath the twinkling stars which for ages have looked on just such scenes, the productions of the caterer's art disappeared as if by magic and the feast of reason and flow of soul ministered to them its rarest pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads enjoy such youthful pleasures about as much as the young people and they vied with their sons and daughter in making each one enjoy the occasion. The result is that all are pleased and would be quite willing to have these celebrations occur about once a week.

A Case in Court.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. L. G. Kessler, in which Mrs. M. M. Dubree, of Philipsburg, was prosecutrix, charging him with a fraudulent assignment of his property, both personal and real, with the intent to defraud his creditors (Mrs. Dubree being a heavy creditor of Kessler), occupied the attention of court Thursday and until adjournment Friday morning.

After the Commonwealth had established the fact that Mrs. Dubree was a creditor, the Commonwealth offered to prove the fraudulent assignment, which was alleged to have taken place in 1877, and successive assignments extending down to May, 1886. The court, however, held the evidence inadmissible, for if any crime had been committed it was in 1877, and the offense was barred by the statute of limitations, which requires the defendant to have been tried within two years from the date of the alleged offense. The Court directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, but submitted to the jury whether the defendant, prosecutrix or county should pay the costs, or whether the costs should be divided between prosecutrix and defendant. The costs were put upon the defendant.

—The Lock Haven Express, in alluding to a reception given by Miss Minnie Weldon in that city, Tuesday evening, has this to say of a Bellefonte gentleman: "Mr. Will Curtin, of Bellefonte, was among the guests and did much towards the enjoyment of all by the way he performed the duties of floor manager." We are glad to know that his part in the affair was so well done.

—We suggest that some of the Bellefonte churches hold thanksgiving services at this time, while the harvest is being gathered in. It is a very ungrateful people who continually receive favors without returning thanks for them.

Glass Works Improvements.

A new cupola now surmounts the old black glass factory, and the roof has been made tight and strong enough to protect all within from the elements for another year to come. The furnace has been built entirely new and is clean and cool inside. It is high enough for a person to stand upright inside of it, and it is difficult to imagine that it may soon be glowing with heat so intense as to render it almost impossible to approach within ten feet of it.

Several men are at work in the pot room and grinding room further back and there are fifty or more pots on hand. These large vessels are made of German clay. They weigh 800 pounds apiece and are real handsome vessels, being so round and even in shape and so clean and smooth on the surface. The German clay comes in chunks several times the size of a brick, but nearly the same in shape. It is broken into small pieces and ground into very fine powder. Then it is moulded into pots. As about fifty of these vessels are used in a year a large supply is always kept on hand.

The wage question is re-settled each year to govern the entire year, and the fact that no adjustment has been agreed upon, thus far, for the present year, will delay the resumption of work a few days. Usually, fire is put in the furnace in time to begin work on September 1. It requires about ten days after the fire is first put in before work can be commenced.

Excursion to Lewisburg.

After considerable correspondence with Mr. Westfall, Supt., and Mr. Harar, Div. Ticket Agt., Williamsport, they have agreed to run a train from Bellefonte to Lewisburg and return Sept. 9th, 1886, on the following terms:

From Bellefonte, (round trip).....	$1.97
" Lemont, " " " " " " " " " "	1.70
" Oak Hall, " " " " " " " " " "	1.65
" Linden Hall, " " " " " " " " " "	1.50
" Centre Hall, " " " " " " " " " "	1.50
" Spring Mills, " " " " " " " " " "	1.50
" Columbia, " " " " " " " " " "	1.40
" Cherry Run, " " " " " " " " " "	1.08

Tickets good to return next day (10th) on any train. Any who so desire can remain over night in Lewisburg. Trains with sufficient cars leave Bellefonte on the 9th at 6 a. m., returning from Lewisburg at 9 p. m. same day. Distance 65 miles. The largest gathering of Grand Army men ever held in Central Pa. will be in Lewisburg on that day. For further particulars call on D. M. Glenn, Bellefonte.

AUSTIN CURTIS,
C. P. STONERODE,
R. C. IRVIN,
Committee.

—The Buffalo Run Railroad is now about completed, and we presume it will soon be open for travel. We predict that, despite its limited dimensions and that it is spoken of by some as "beginning nowhere and running nowhere," it will be a paying institution and will be a benefit to the county all along its route.

Our people are great travelers and have a particular preference for railroad travel, and when it is possible, they discard all other kind. Besides, it is sure to start up business and increase the amount of shipping in the territory which it traverses. It is certain also to soon connect with the Beech Creek railroad, increasing the prosperity of that line and giving this part of Centre county what it has so greatly stood in need of—a competing railroad. There will be business enough in this vicinity to make remunerative carrying trade for both railroad lines.

—Beneath the shade of the young and flourishing trees, just south of the First National bank, and overlooking Diamond Square, a new enterprise has been launched into existence. It is a peanut stand. Upon a frame stand is placed a huge pile of America's favorite nut, attended by two men. This little enterprise seems but a speck upon the firmament, but it may in time grow into such proportions as to divide the attention of the people with the bank and even with Artist Beck. With a broom, the owners of the institution keep the pavement scrupulously clean of peanut shells and thus avert the wrath of Mr. Jones. We understand that the owners have taken out a $20 license to prosecute their business and thus declare, in the words of Bellefonte's most recent journalistic enterprise, that they have "come to stay."

—We hear of families in Bellefonte that have been made happy by the labor that has been given them by the enterprises of the Bellefonte Iron Company and other new sources of employment recently opened. In some instances where the men have not had regular work for years all of them are now employed and the female members of the family can give up their work of scrubbing, taking in washings, etc. This is the beginning of what we trust will be continued prosperity for this community.

Among the items of business which have come before court since our last report are:

Commonwealth vs. R. K. Nelson. Miss Ayres, the prosecutrix, to pay the costs. A man named Mills, of Boggs township, was tried for stealing a watch, found guilty and sent to jail for 20 days.

The case of Commonwealth vs. Warren Hanson was settled.

A few evenings ago the wind concentrated itself on the spire of St. Paul's church in Nittany Valley, destroying that part of the structure and doing other damage.

Accident at Houtzdale.

A dispatch to the Altoona Tribune, dated the 25th, says: At half past 3 this afternoon three of the roof trusses of the new opera house fell, bursting out the entire south end of the building. Witter, the contractor, and Adams, one of the men, were on top of the middle truss and came down with the wreck of lumber. Both men were terribly injured.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes, that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled in his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with the best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this wonderful Discovery.

Trial Bottles free at J. Zeller & Son's drug store.

—The present smoky, dusty condition of the atmosphere is not favorable for those who visit Point McCoy, as it prevents them obtaining an extended view.

For fifteen years I was annoyed with severe pain in my head and discharges into my throat from catarrh. My sense of smell was much impaired. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm I have overcome these troubles.—J. B. Case, St. Denis Hotel, New York.

It is now about five years since I first began using Ely's Cream Balm, and from the time of its first introduction there has been a growing demand for it, and so far it has given very great satisfaction to my customers. I consider it a catarrh remedy of genuine merit. —A. B. Burns, Druggist, Montrose, Pa.

—The fourth annual re-union of the 76th regiment, Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteers, will be held in Altoona on Friday, September 17.

"You may remember I spoke to you about having been afflicted with severe sick headaches. Well, some time ago I began using Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" in faint hope of relief. To my delight, and rather to my surprise, I have never had an attack since. How thankful I am I need hardly tell you. I heartily wish that all women tortured in this way knew how certain and pleasant a cure "Favorite Remedy" is. Sarah J. Woodruff, Newburg, N. Y.

—The brick work on Mr. J. H. Sands' residence has been completed. Morris Cowdick and his sons made quick and good work of it.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know I have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used three bottles of Electric Bitters, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by J. Zeller & Son.

—The rear seats in Humes' Hall have been elevated and now afford a much better view of the stage than they formerly did.

It is estimated that there are one hundred thousand sufferers from hay fever in the United States; a number about four times greater than the regular standing army. This number could be reduced to a mere regiment if all would resort to Ely's Cream Balm.

—The attendance at Fancher's minstrels, Friday evening, was good and the performance excellent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THIS BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Calloused Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, on terms. An article having a large sale, paying over ten per cent. profit, no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every household, it might not be necessary to make an "enthusiastic display" to secure good agents; but we have concluded to make it so, to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salubility by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $200 to $500 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 this time, above all expenses, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more copies of our work them through, sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $200 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have your name and address, and we will send you our offer, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money. Address: MARY ANN, care of J. Zeller & Son, 103 South Third St., Pittsburgh, Pa. 18 11 ly

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Massachusetts Engineer.

Sleep after fatigue and health after disease are two of the sweetest experiences known to man. Four or five years is a long time to suffer, yet Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., has had a miserable life for that period through the pressure of stone in the bladder. He had obtained temporary relief, but nothing more. Last January he called on Dr. David Kennedy, of Bondout, N. Y., who said, after an examination: "Mr. Lawler, you have stone in the bladder. We will first try Dr. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY before risking an operation." A few days later the following letter came:

DALTON, Mass., Feb. 6, 1886.
DEAR DR. KENNEDY: The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now.
Dr. Kennedy now has the stones at his disposal, and they are sufficiently formidable to justify the claim that KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is the leading specific for stone in the bladder. In his letter Mr. Lawler mentions that FAVORITE REMEDY also cured him of rheumatism. The subjoined certificate tells its own story.

"LEDBERGHILL, N. Y.,
DALTON, Mass., April 27, 1886.
Mr. Peter Lawler has been a resident of this town for the past seventeen years, and in our employ for fifteen, and in all these years he has been a good and respected citizen of the town and community. He has had some chronic disease to our knowledge for most of the time, but now claims to be, and is, in apparent good health."
CHARLES G. BARRY, President.

$1 bottle, 6 for $5. All drug lists.
Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" (Bondout, N. Y.)—It is not a mere cathartic, temporarily pain, but by its alterative action purifies the blood, restores a beautiful condition to the diseased organs, and even dissolves and causes the expulsion of gravel and stone from the kidneys and bladder. The testimony of hundreds who have been cured by it vouches for it.

Local Department.

—Cooler—the atmosphere.
 —The rain arrived and it was a magnificent one.
 —The evenings will be bright and pretty this week.
 —Plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables are now in the market.
 —After carrying umbrellas steadily for two weeks, several people were caught in the rain Monday afternoon.
 —The entertainment on Wednesday and Thursday evenings will be for the benefit of Gregg Post, G. A. R.
 —The free show, brass band and lighting tooth puller created a sensation in Diamond Square Saturday night.
 —Mr. Calvin Lose has moved into the dwelling house along Water street, just completed by James Harris & Co.
 —There have been numerous indications of rain since Saturday night, but a very small quantity of it has fallen.
 —Mr. James Stott has been temporarily appointed to the position of superintendent of the Methodist Sunday-school.
 —This will be a dull week, and we hope the young folks will have a few social festivities to relieve the monotony.
 —McMillen's North Carolina Troubadours gave an enjoyable full-dress rehearsal to a select audience on Monday evening.
 —James Cornelly, who was arrested on Saturday night, was taken to jail, and has been detained until he can furnish $800 bail.
 —Four young men were arrested by Constable Olinger, Monday, for trespassing on private grounds in the vicinity of Coleville.
 —A horse driven by Mr. Harvey, of near Milesburg, fell on the crossing near Reynolds' Bank, Saturday, breaking the shafts of the vehicle.
 —The casing in the Saxton furnace in Huntingdon county, fell down Saturday night, killing John Irvine and seriously injuring David Smouse and a Hungarian.
 —A horse owned by Mr. Fred Kurtz, at Centre Hall, became unmanageable, Monday, kicking a wagon to which it was attached and damaging it considerably.
 —One of the advance agents for Forepaugh's show is in Bellefonte arranging for the appearance of that aggregation of talent in this place some day during October.
 —Mr. Geo. Chase is about to retire as superintendent of the works of the Bellefonte Gas Company and he will be succeeded by Mr. Robert McKnight. Mr. Chase expects to go to New York City.
 —Mr. Benjamin Housel, who lives at the junction of Spring street and the Lewistown pike, and who works for Mr. Chas. McCafferty, was so unfortunate as to break his left arm the other day while at work.
 —It is expected that the business office of the Bellefonte Iron Company will be moved into the old building this week. We might almost call it a new building, so extensively has it been repaired.
 —During the beginning of last week Garman's Hotel was more than crowded and one day it was necessary to turn from twenty five to fifty persons away because of the impossibility to furnish accommodations.
 —Mr. John Foster, of State College, on Saturday last fell from a plum tree, breaking his leg. Mr. Foster is a brother of Squire Samuel Foster in this place and is a very excellent old gentleman. We regret to learn of his misfortune.
 —We hear that Mr. John Sourbeck is going to sell peanuts at 5 cents per quart, which is just half the price asked by the Italians near the First National Bank. Now, we suppose the latter salesmen will reduce their stock to 3 cts. per quart.
 —On Saturday afternoon a horse driven by William Myers was frightened and ran along Spring street. A lady who was in the vehicle was thrown out and slightly injured. The vehicle came in contact with Mr. S. T. Shugert's buggy, near the Centre County Bank, breaking a wheel off of it.
 —Mr. and Mrs. John Bair are radiantly happy all because they are entertaining a young lady visitor who is the most cunning and delightful little miss who has visited this section for a long time. They have our congratulations and hopes for the prosperity and happiness of the darling daughter.
 —An effort is being made to have the sentence of Wm. Hemphill, of Philipsburg, commuted or changed. He is the man who was sentenced to one year and eighteen months imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary. The Sheriff will not take him to Allegheny until the latter part of this week.
 —In all the religious meetings we attended Sunday we do not remember to have heard a petition for rain although it was then so sorely needed. This seems like negligence and want of faith on the part of those who engage in public worship but, nevertheless a kind Providence did not withhold a blessing.

Religious Services on Sunday.

The people who remained at home on Sunday and did not go to church suffered much more from the heat than they who attended worship. While in the Methodist church in the morning we found the temperature quite comfortable and the attention of the vast congregation was so engrossed by the interesting exercises as to be oblivious of any prevailing temperature.
 The choir sang very beautifully, an opening voluntary, "Rock of Ages," and while the collection was being lifted they rendered a hymn that was a favorite with the late Durbin Gray, Esq., to who memory the service was devoted. The selection is "God's Anvil," and is very sweet and tender in sentiment.
 So much has been said and written regarding the revered deceased that we shall merely note here that the sermon delivered by Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., was a grand and effective production, magnifying the character of one whose life was an embodiment of Christian sentiment and manly honor. And we must say that we are glad that Durbin Gray's death has impressed this community so thoroughly. It is sad for one to die in the bright flush of manhood, but no man has ever stepped from time into eternity who left behind him a more stainless memory. Consequently, his death was a triumph and his influence will live forever. It is better to honor such an one, than to honor a great chieftain or a famous philosopher.
 The Bar of Centre county and the Constans Commandery, K. T. were present in the church and after the sermon the latter fraternity was represented by a chaste and beautiful address read by Col. D. H. Hastings. The service was a complete success.
 In the evening Rev. D. S. Monroe, delivered a sermon on church work and announced that next Sunday his discourse will be on the subject, "Laziness."
 In the Episcopal church, both morning and evening, Rev. Dr. Bird, of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa. officiated, delivering very able sermons.
 The Presbyterian church was open for service in the evening.
 Rev. Mr. Beach, of Baltimore, conducted a public meeting in Y. M. C. A. hall Sunday afternoon, making it very interesting by the pointed and earnest address which he delivered.

Extracts from the Tribute Read by Col. Hastings.

Among the very beautiful paragraphs contained in the address read by Col. D. H. Hastings, in the M. E. church Sunday morning, we select a few, as follows:
 "On March 15th, 1870, Samuel Durbin Gray took his first step as a member of an institution more ancient than empires, republics or any Christian church known to the civilized world.
 "On Monday last, August 23d, having ascended to the topmost round of the mystic ladder in this jurisdiction, and after 16 years of faithful service, he obeyed the summons of the Grand Master and has gone to his reward.
 "Those of us who were bound to him by stronger ties than mere friendship have been permitted this day, in this public manner, to drop a sprig of uscia, and the white flowers of knightly remembrance upon his new-made grave.
 "He did not place the measure of his duty to the order of which I speak above the duty which he owed to the church. In harmony with the Masonic teachings, he looked upon the Christian church as God's visible representative on earth, having God for its Author, the Holy Scriptures for its guide, Christ for its example, the world for its field of labor, Heaven for its asylum, and eternal life for its reward. He strove, with all true Templars, to give prominence to the maxim that Masonic Knighthood aims in an humble and imperfect way to act as the hand-maid of Christianity, to bear the same relation to Christianity that youth does to manhood, that spring does to full-blown summer, that the morning star does to the sun.
 "The archives of our order reveal the fact that no member was more faithful and devoted in his attendance upon the stated convocations. There we shall see his kindly face no more. His words of counsel and encouragement, his friendly greeting, and his impressive exemplification of the unwritten work for so many years, will be heard no more within our walls. But the remembrance of his virtues and the noble qualities of his heart and mind will linger in our memories while life shall last. As the years pass by
 "They carry with them as they go
 The rain, the sunshine and the snow;
 They leave behind the drift of days,
 Theirs each soul some penance pays;
 Some hopes we have, but not our own;
 Some loves we cherish, not alone;
 And there are leaves, and faded flowers
 That tell sad tales in memory's hours."

The Methodist Sunday-school's Memorial.

The Methodist Sunday-school held services on Sunday afternoon in honor of its late Superintendent, S. Durbin Gray, Esq. There were numerous visitors present and great interest was taken in the exercises. Eloquent addresses were delivered by Prof. D. M. Lieb, principal of the public schools, J. G. Love and H. H. Harshbeger, Esqs. and Mr. Stott.
 We could not attend this service, but we have heard Mr. Lieb's address alluded to in highest praise as a most feeling and sympathetic deliverance. The following resolutions, adopted by the school, express its sorrow:

WHEREAS, our brother, S. Durbin Gray, departed this life on the 23d of August, 1886, and whereas, in view of the prominent position he held in the Sabbath-school and the great interest he always manifested in its welfare, it is very proper that some expression be given to the sense of sorrow which this sad event has occasioned; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Sunday-school of the Bellefonte Methodist Episcopal church, that whilst we bow in reverent submission to the bereavement that has befallen us, we keenly feel the severity of the stroke that has deprived us of our beloved superintendent.

Resolved, 2d, That this, our loss, is no ordinary one, but a deep, sad, heavy, indelibly mournful and overwhelming one.

Resolved, 3d, That in this hour of common trouble, we extend to his sorrowing widow, his aged parents, his brother and sister, that cordial sympathy and communion of spirit and feeling which spring from hearts afflicted with a similar sorrow.

News and Politics from Stormstown.

Stormstown, August 30.
 George Gray has just put up a very fine house in the place of the one destroyed by fire some time ago.

Mr. William Smith, of Unionville, assisted by that invincible Beaver man, Harry Calhoun, put up the building in a wonderfully short time.

What was known as the Lee House at Scotia was destroyed by fire last week. Mr. Lee was not at home and I cannot state whether all his refreshments were burned up or not.

The Rev. W. R. Whitney, of Altoona, is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Some miscreant robbed W. L. Wilson's bees the other night of a considerable amount of honey. This was wrong, as Mr. Wilson will give anyone honey who needs it, without price.

Mr. Frank Burket has returned home after a year's absence in Missouri. That will score one more vote for General Beaver.

A great many people know of the church scandal in this valley, which was at it height this summer. But no sooner is it healed up in one place than it breaks out in another. Pitch in, gentlemen; the outside heathen are looking on and wondering at what point religion will step in and put a stop to such disgraceful conduct.

I was in Philipsburg last week and took by the hand some of the Republican corps commanders, namely, Robert Lloyd, Captain Harry Simler, Hugh Adams, and last but not least, that genial individual, William Wyke. Half Moon's loss is Philipsburg gain, and this township deeply feels the loss of "Bill" Wyke, for he was one of the best Republican workers that your correspondent ever had the pleasure of meeting.

Mr. Guyer Mattern will go to Bellefonte with enough delegates to nominate him on first ballot. Good and true Republicans take the right view of this matter—that Mr. Mattern was willing to risk the expenses of the campaign before it was known there was any dissatisfaction in the ranks of the Democrats, and that the Republicans on this side of the mountain do not concede the nomination to the other side. They nearly always get what offices there are to distribute in the Republican camp, while we on this side are compelled to give the Republican vote—not meaning anything disrespectful of the Republicans east of the mountain, for they deserve a great deal of credit for fighting the overwhelming odds that are against them. The desire of all good Republicans of this end of the county is to have Mr. Guyer Mattern nominated for Prothonotary. He will add strength to the ticket, not weaken it. He is a man of sterling business qualities—a graduate of Poughkeepsie Business College. He will be a tower of strength to the ticket, a man capable of filling the office with the dignity and respect that are due the position.

I will write again next week.
 Yours, &c. CORPORAL.

Literary and Musical Entertainment at Unionville.

The debate and other exercises, a notice of which was given in the REPUBLICAN last week, came off on Saturday evening last, and, as was anticipated, proved to be one of the most pleasing and interesting events that has occurred in that town for many a day. The question was—"Resolved, That he who has passed through life and resisted the temptations of intoxicating drinks deserves more credit than he who has drunk deeply and reformed."

Each of the four debaters was fully armed and equipped, ready for the contest, and from the able manner in which the question was handled, it was evident that each one was determined to do his best to win the battle.

Mrs. Edith Cleaver, who for a number of years was principal of the Unionville Seminary, opened the question in the affirmative, followed by Miss Mary E. Griest on the negative, and Prof. W. C. Miller, affirmative, and Wm. P. Fisher, Jr., negative. I would give an outline of each person's argument, but do not wish to encroach upon your space. Suffice to say, that the subject was ably handled by the parties concerned. The eloquent and logical arguments advanced by Mrs. Cleaver and Miss Griest, the flowery address of Prof. Miller, and the plain, common sense argument of Wm. P. Fisher, Jr., all tended to create the most profound interest.

Measrs. L. B. Barnhurst, Frank Conner and George Forry constituted a board of judges and decided the debate in favor of the negative. The house was crowded and the best of order prevailed.

Besides the debate, there were a number of recitations and readings. The Misses Florence and Bertha Cleaver are not easily excelled by any so young as they. Miss Maggie Teats read an article on temperance, which in the manner of reading excelled anything we have heard by one so young. Then there was little Alice Lucas, who made a cute little speech. Several others spoke who I have forgotten. The entire programme was seasoned with choice music by the choir, one of the prettiest pieces being that popular quartette, "Come where the lilies bloom." Mrs. A. T. Leathers presided at the organ, Miss Fannie Blair sang the soprano, Miss Laura Rumberger the alto, Mr. J. F. Barton "did" the tenor and John Brugger the basso. Well, Mr. Editor, all I have further to say is that they who were not there missed a treat and they will not soon again have an opportunity to witness so excellent an entertainment.

A Fatal Accident in Altoona.

The Altoona Tribune, Saturday, relates the following accident:
 "William Bottorff, a brakeman in the scales yard crew, Conductor James Reilly, was attempting to make a coupling on the scales track this morning, when he was caught between the cars and fatally injured. When the cars caught him he uttered a loud cry, which attracted the attention of the other trainmen. They found him lying on the ground under the cars. He was taken out, placed on a stretcher, and carried to the Altoona Hospital, the company physician accompanying him. An examination of his injuries showed that his left arm was crushed and the wrist broken, and his right breast crushed in. The latter injury is of a fatal nature, and the physician could do nothing more than make him comfortable.

"When the reporter left the hospital at 2 o'clock this morning the unfortunate brakeman was sinking rapidly, and it was thought he could not live till to-day. Brakeman Bottorff is aged 23 years, and had been employed in the railroad yard two years. He is a married man and resides north of the Fairview cemetery. He requested that his wife be brought to the hospital, and messengers were sent to break the sad news to her, but she had not arrived at the hospital at 2 o'clock.

"Just as we go to press word is received from the city hospital that Mr. Bottorff died at 2:10 o'clock, about half an hour after being taken to the institution. His wife arrived at his bedside a few minutes after his death."

The Bellefonte Academy.

Owing to the departure of Mrs. E. M. Roberts to another field of usefulness, there will be some change in the seating and control of the pupils in the different departments at the Academy, for the ensuing term, which opens on Wednesday, September 8. The young men will be seated in the classical room, in the second story of the north wing, under the care of Mr. Jas. R. Hughes.

The boys of the intermediate and primary departments will be seated in the brick building, under the supervision of the Principal. The young ladies and younger girls will be carefully provided for under the charge of Miss Jennie Gehret and Miss Emma Hughes.

Every needed attention will be furnished for the comfort and culture of young ladies and gentlemen as well as for younger boys and girls, both in the elementary and higher branches of study.

The Earthquake Shock at Honesburg.

The place in this county where Tuesday night's earthquake shock was felt most severely was at Honesburg. Three distinct shocks were felt, the first one, which occurred about ten minutes before 10 o'clock, being the most severe. It lasted about 30 seconds. Many persons, feeling their houses shake, ran into the street, much alarmed. Between the time of the first shock and 10 o'clock two more shocks, less severe, were felt. The shocks created considerable excitement in that place.

Two daughters of Dr. Hafer, accompanied by a friend, returned on Friday from a trip through Texas. The Texas which they traveled through was a small village near Rebersburg, this county.

Mr. Shaffer, proprietor of one of the popular hotels at Spring Mills, while in this direction on Thursday, informed us that as many visitors are in that place this season as can be accommodated.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeal, of East Elizabeth, N. J., are guests at the home of Col. W. H. Wilkinson. They arrived on Saturday with Miss Minnie Wilkinson, who visited Niagara Falls with them. From here they will go to Luray Caves, Virginia.

Guests at the home of Dr. Seibert are Miss Phillips, of Mt. Carmel, Pa. and Mr. Newton Boalich, of New Mexico. Mr. Boalich is a brother of Mrs. Seibert. When he returns to New Mexico, Miss Boalich, a sister of Mrs. Seibert, expects to accompany him.

Mr. Mills, the Prohibition advocate, is in town looking up some of the records in the court house in the great endeavor to find something that he can use against Gen. Beaver. Thus far he has been unsuccessful. Just now twenty Mills are required to make a cent.

Mr. Frank B. Stover just arrived home from Missouri, where he spent a few weeks. He was much pleased with his visit there, and received an enthusiastic welcome from his friends, who were almost determined not to let him return east again. While in Southern Missouri he found the weather pretty hot, but managed to survive, and still looks as well as ever.

Important Gatherings in Bellefonte.

Our town is becoming constantly more and more a place where people, on business and pleasure bent, delight to congregate. Several conventions and meetings of different kinds are appointed to assemble here. We have been told all about them at different times, but the dates of some escape our memory.

The first will occur this month—the last Tuesday, 29th inst., we believe. It will be the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society connected with the Synod of the Lutheran church, of which Bellefonte forms a part. It includes about fifty ladies, and they sometimes, as a great favor, bring along their husbands and families—especially if their husbands are real good, obedient men. The programme for this gathering will soon be published.

Following this, sometime in October, will be the secretaries' conference of the Y. M. C. A. That will be composed of about fifty of the finest, best looking young men in the State, of whom Secretary C. E. Schaffer is a bright and shining example.

We understand that some sort of a dental convention will be held here in the near future, but the crowning one of all in proportions and interest will be the Methodist Conference next Spring. Just think of about 300 Methodist ministers and laymen to remain here about a week. Everything during that time will be flavored with Methodism. The prospect of it will keep up the price of chickens all the fall and winter.

—It is said that the girl at the boarding house who was so frightened by a strange man near the door of her room, Saturday evening, screamed very loudly, and it is surprising to us that there was so little response. The query is, where were all the brave men who board there? The ladies, of course, hearing the alarm—a man in the house—did not dare venture from their rooms. One or two say they were willing to peep out the door, but were prevented by others in the same room who were afraid to stay alone. It is said that Mr. Whiteman, in desperate effort to jump into his clothes, pulled all the garments in the room from their hooks and scattered them on the floor, and then did not find anything. George VanTries, D. B. Bell and the others have not yet accounted for their non-appearance upon the scene.

—On Saturday night when the girl employed by the Misses Humes and McGill, at their boardinghouse, went to her room she saw through the window the form of a man crouching on the floor outside her door. She began to scream and also to pound on the floor to attract attention. Persons came to her assistance, among whom was W. E. Gray, Esq., who caught the man just as he was sneaking out the street door. The fellow proved to be James Cornelly, the same man who was found in Mrs. Curtin's house at night some time ago. James gives as his excuse that he was attracted there by the screams of the girl, but this excuse is not credited. These nocturnal visits are becoming too frequent and the court house ring should use its influence to put a stop to them.

—The excursion train to Lewisburg, on the 9th of September, will leave at 6 o'clock a. m. This hour is too early for people living at a distance from town to come in and purchase their tickets. To provide for this Mr. John Potter and Mr. David Glenn have a plan which will enable these persons to secure tickets on the afternoon of the 8th. Leave your money for the ticket with David Glenn any time between now and the 8th and Mr. Potter will leave with Mr. Glenn a sufficient number of tickets to cover the amount of money deposited. They can be obtained at any time after 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the 8th. Then the people can come to town with their tickets in their pockets.

—Judge A. O. Furst frequently takes occasion to give advice to those who are brought before him for sentence. These words of advice are very valuable and if only they are heeded by the offenders the result would be of much benefit to them. The Judge's bench is a good place from which to impart these words of wisdom, because the culprit must listen whether he desires to do so or not, and he is usually in that condition of mind to think seriously of whatever is said to him.

—Mr. Kyle McFarlane, while exploring the inside of J. H. Sands new residence on Sunday, fell through the floor, injuring himself slightly. Friends who called on him Sunday evening offered such consolation as to compare his fortune in entering other people's houses with that of James Cornelly, which had the effect of making him better next day and he is about as usual.

—Some people obtained their first glimpse at the new moon on Tuesday evening.
